ADDING CHARM TO Your Home
By Bill Wieland

SLEEPING BEAUTY

There's no use denying that progress has completely revolutionized our bedrooms both decoratively and functionally. Our demand for more living space in a small area was answered by Modern Architecture which in turn led to the design of Modern Furniture with its elegant simplicity of form and line. Designers have kept pace with scientists who are forever peering over tomorrow's shoulder to contrive to give us more luxury than we've ever known before. As witness that marvel of modern science, the new foam rubber mattresses. Designed for long wear and luxurious comfort they are as soft as snowflakes, firm enough for complete body support, and sag resistant.

The background for the modern furniture in the room sketched above is a psychological combination of restful colors, by a pale green ceiling. The only sharp accents are the green and yellow-gold bold-patterned draperies.

Horizontal balance has been achieved by massing bookcases, head unit and storage chest, along one entire wall with bed centered. Deep-pile snowy-white chenille spread (tubbable) gives soft touch to room, contrasts sharply with dark green wool broadloom rug.

If you are refurbishing your bedroom—just making additions or replacements, come in and let us help you make your selections.

Two Local Women Throw Shuttle In Broadening Hobby

Mrs. Roger M. Rogers and Mrs. Arbie O. Thacker of Westwood recently wave themselves out of a hobby and into a small business.

The ladies call themselves the "Marjean Weavers" and there is no limit to what can be made in the colors that can be used. They have found that place mats woven with metallic threads are most in demand these days.

WHAT HAPPENED along about last April to start all this interest was that Mrs. Rogers took a course in weaving for her own enjoyment and when she completed it, taught Mrs. Thacker, whose curiosity had also been aroused.

At the present time both of them are taking advanced courses in weaving out at the Cranbrook Academy and return home to their work on three looms set up in the basement of the Roger's home.

THE "MARJEAN WEAVERS" have had so many requests for baby blankets of all sizes and place mats, that they have had to discontinue taking orders for a few months. The unusual place mats they create are woven in the pattern of any dishes which are to be matched by the mats.

Mrs. Thacker says she "learned the hard way by doing everything backwards," but her enterprising progress to her present state of perfection matching that of Mrs. Rogers, is visible in the finished products of the "Marjean Weavers."
