Local Girl Among Student Excavators At Arizona School

Among the student archaeologists from throughout the United States who are in camp at the University of Arizona's archaeological field school, learning excavating and to record the stories of ancient civilizations on actual ruins sites is Miss Kit Scheifele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Scheifele, of Linden road.

In Point of Pines, Ariz., relics of prehistoric Indian civilization in the southwest as early as 1900 BC are being uncovered in these centuries-old burial grounds by summer students at the University of Arizona, where Miss Scheifele is a regular student.

The club will also sponsor four Saturday night dinner dances on August 5, 12, 19 and 26.

THE FIELD SCHOOL was located on a site occupied in prehistoric times by three different Indian peoples who built their villages, grew crops and let their cultures intermingle. The ruins of the dwelling and relics left behind tell of the Mongolians, mountain Indians; the Anasazi, pueblo dwellers; and of Hohokams, the desert tribes.

After four years of intensive study and research, the students in the summer field school will dig for another 15 years before working through the ruins, it is said by Dr. Emil W. Haury, director of the school and Arizona State Museum.

IN THE meantime many valuable relics will pour into the Arizona museum for continuing studying and research, and display among the university's collections.

A Pledge to the American People by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

We will resist all unwarranted price rises with all our might.

We will make every effort to hold our inventories at the lowest point consistent with good service to our customers, because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers or consumers, will cause higher prices.

We will continue to maintain the lowest profit rate generally prevailing in the entire retail industry. Our net profit now is less than one cent on each dollar of sales.

We will continue to strive for more efficient distribution

We will fight waste of food, or time, or money all along the line so as to narrow the spread between wholesale and retail prices.

We will devote all our energies to giving you the most good food for your money every day of the week.

We will strive always to do what is honest, fair, sincere and in the best interest of our country and our customers.

As most of you know, this company and the low cost, low profit policies that built it are under attack.

We are defending ourselves against a suit brought by the anti-trust lawyers to put A&P out of business.

But the greater conflict in which our country is now engaged takes precedence over all else.

Today, with our boys fighting in Korea, we believe that all citizens and all businesses, big and little, should devote themselves wholeheartedly to the public interest.

We promise the American people that we will cooperate unhesitatingly with our national government in the present crisis.

We promise you that we will continue to do everything in our power to put more buying power in your food dollar and more good food on your dinner table.

John A. Hartford, Chairman
