The reason our salesmen estimate your job . . .

Over and above the convenience of getting an estimate to you on your job of printing more promptly, there is a much better reason why our salesmen do their own estimating.

On many jobs there are ways to do it more econom-ically than eriginally specified. And usually you are interested in saving money if just a slight change will effect some economy.

That's where direct contact with a salesm knows what makes up a price, helps you. If he has to take your specifications back to an "estimator" it re take your specifications ack to an estimator it would, in the first place, mean a delay. Secondly, the estimator proceeds mechanically and impersonally in figuring your job. Then he turns it over to the who, because he doesn't know to about costs, passes it on to you without being able to make those helpful, money-saying suggestions.

We've seen it happen so many times where our method helps you. It seems a shame every printer od helps you. It seems a shan n't offer this kind of cooperation
