Bloomfield Village School News

Kindergartners drew pictures of what they heard in the story, 'The Furry Duckling'. Stories were told about the pictures, then made into a book.

Several children are painting pictures to decorate the borders of their room. Cindy Higgins painted an exact picture of a boy, Norma Lundeen one with trees and Pamela Walker, a house.

Saturday Robbie Maxwell invited the first and second grade to a "coasting" party at his home at 5605 Lahser road.

Second graders made a little booklets in which they keep the names of the library books they read. Kent Hakan is out of school because of the measles.

The third and fourth graders are welcoming a new pupil, Merv Ploom, who is from Estonia.

The class has a post office and have been busy selling stamps, post cards, money orders and writing letters to each other.

Class officers for the week were president, Henry Bartholomew; vice-president, Donald Andrade. Henry Bartholomew attended the father and son banquet at the Revere club Saturday.

The magazine subscription sale by the fifth and sixth graders is now well under way. Linda Raikas won the pen and pencil set for having the highest total sales on the first day. The sale ends March 6.

The movie, "The Declaration of Independence," was shown to the class, Feb. 22. Washington's birthday. Reports on the activities were told about Washington.

Ward Tullison brought a stereoscope to school for the class to use.

Brownie leader, Mrs. Walter Simons, reports the following results from the Brownie cookie sale a total of $20.51, with 117 orders for Brownie cookies.

Vaughan School Has Successful Carnival

The Bloomfield Hills high school athletic club, named "B" club, held its third annual carnival last Friday night at Vaughan school. Many parents and students turned out to make it the most successful in both attendance and receipts. About 450 people were in the varied concessions and booths, and the B club manager gives an initial estimate of over $200 profits which go to the athletic fund which is earmarked to take care of injuries occurring in school games or on the school grounds.

Concessions erected by different school groups included dart throwing, sponge throwing, movies, house of mystery, and similar carnival thrill events. Closed with two comic plays by the speech class, and an auction, with Bruce Wilson acting as auctioneer.

Detroit Orchestra to Present Concert at Cranbrook School

The Little Symphony of Detroit will present a concert in the Cranbrook school auditorium Tuesday evening, March 28, at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the Cranbrook central committee offices. For the remainder of this season, the orchestra is restricting appearances to repeat concerts.

Over a year ago, a small group of musicians of the Detroit Symphony orchestra began playing together for their own pleasure and satisfaction. Their mutual love of good music and playing it drew them together. The organization was at first rather informal, and no thought was given to the possibility of public performances. Then, for the first time in many years, Detroit was without a professional symphony orchestra.

In response to a civic need, the Little Symphony of Detroit made a public debut last May 26, at the main auditorium of the Detroit Institute of Art.

Aboard Flagship During Cruise in Mediterranean

GREAT LAKES, Ill.—Harry J. Eller, fireman apprentice, USN, of 1540 East Long Lake road, Birmingham, Mich., is on duty in the Mediterranean aboard the heavy cruiser USS Newport News, which recently commenced a four-month cruise that will take him to many of the ports bordering on the Mediterranean.

The Newport News is the flagship of the Sixth Task Fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral John J.
