

The Birmingham Eccentric

Triangle Club To Appear on Night Of Yale Dance

An "intercollegiate night" of entertainment with the Detroit area alumni of Yale and Princeton universities banding together in sponsorship of a theatrical performance and dance, will be presented in Detroit on Friday, December 22.

"Too Hot for Today," the 59th annual performance of the Princeton Triangle club, will be held at the Masonic temple that evening, and the fourth annual dance of the Yale Alumni Association is booked for the same evening at the Country Club in Grosse Pointe.

THE TRIANGLE CLUB'S performance will begin at 8:30 p.m. and the Yale dance at 9:30 p.m. It is expected that many of those who attend the show will go to the dance afterward. Both functions are staged for the benefit of scholarship funds of the respective clubs.

Later this month invitations for the Yale dance will be mailed, H. Hunter Williams, Yale entertainment chairman, said Wednesday, coupled with ticket applications, for the Triangle show are already in the mail, according to Grant E. Armstrong, secretary of the club.

LOCAL MEMBERS OF the committee for the Triangle club performance include Charles W. Williams, tickets; U. B. Brannin, Jr., transportation; and Arthur H. Otis, Jr., publicity.

Word from Princeton has it that the show is now in full-scale rehearsal for its opening at McCarter theater, Princeton, on December 7. The next showing will be in New York, after which the two-week tour begins.

Cast Rehearses for Dec. 1-2, 8-9 Play Of Dunstan's Guild

Mrs. Zoltan Sepsy and Frederic C. Few hold the leading roles in the production of Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook production of Martin Vale's melodramas, "The Two Mrs. Carrills."

The play will be presented on December 1 and 2, and again on December 8 and 9 at the Cranbrook Pavilion.

Cast as Sally, the second Mrs. Carrill, Mrs. Sepsy's opposite, who appears as her husband, a painter; in this tantalizing story of suspense and intrigue.

ALSO PROMINENT in the cast are Mrs. Fred Brock, Mrs. W. H. Adams and Mrs. Glen Miller, who plays the first Mrs. Carrill.

Mrs. Edward C. Chapman appears in the unusual role of the housekeeper who speaks only French. Malcolm Berry and Donald Chaffee complete the small cast which is being directed by Sheldon R. Noble.

Tickets for the production are available at Grinnell's record counter, the Fox and Hounds, and at the door of the Pavilion.

All the attendants wore similar ensemble of minuet blue velvet. Their gowns were designed with snug bodices, bouffant skirts, and were distinguished by short caplets. Their matching cloches were of velvet and the maids carried cascades of deep red roses, while the honor matron carried a cascade arrangement of yellow roses.

HERBERT H. UPTON, JR., of Ann Arbor assisted as best man and seating the guests were Frederick Teich, Jr., of Kenilworth, Ill., and the Rev. Robert L. DeWitt of a Victorian style bridal dress of ivory duchess satin.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club. As she received the guests, Mrs. Sperry was wearing an aqua crepe dinner dress and matching jacket with aqua velvet hat and yellow orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Sperry, selected a tourquoise mouselinee de soie dinner dress with small matching hat and an orchid corsage.

BEFORE THE NEW Mr. and Mrs. Sperry, Jr. left by plane for a honeymoon in Ponte Vedra, Fla., the bride donned a two-tone gray suit with light gray hat and white orchid corsage.

Upon their return the newlyweds will make their home in Northbrook, Ill.

OF DRAGONFLY WINGS, BATS AND THINGS—Whoever said little girls are made of sugar and spice and things nice should get a gander at the "beauty" masks Parisian face stylist Fernand Aubrey has designed for milady's wear at formal social functions. If Aubrey has his way, the well-dressed dam'selle will have a giant dragonfly perched on her proboscis or a gauze-winged vampire veiling her face. And with either mask, she'll run the risk of being caught on the wrong end of a fly-swatter.
