Theatre's History Shown in Latest Cranbrook Exhibit

"Theatre—From Ritual to Broadway", an exhibition prepared by the editors of Life magazine will be on view in lobby of the arts and science building at Cranbrook, Nov. 27-Dec. 11.

Over the past decade, Life's journalist-photographers have produced an unsurpassed record of the American stage, which forms the nucleus of "Theatre". It traces the history of theatre from its beginning in ancient ritual to its familiar present. The exhibition also undertakes to suggest some of the reasons—religious and social—for theatre's perennial and universal appeal.

After an introductory panel suggesting something of the variety of places of theatrical performance, the exhibition opens with a section on "The Beginnings of Theatre".

THIS TOUCHES upon the ritualistic aspects of Maypole dances and present-day Indian dances, which are related to the Festivals of Dionysus in classical Greece, which gave birth to the Greek tragic theatre.

The second section is devoted to "Tragic Theatres". The six panels of this section deal with Greek tragedy and its use of chorus, and relate Shakespearean tragedy to the ordered world of medieval Europe where theatre took place against the background of the Cathedral.

"The Perennial Life of Comedy" is the title of the third section. The tradition of clowning and popular farce has been almost unbroken, from the ancient clown that came from the fertility rituals, down to our own vaudeville performers.

POPULAR FARCE is also the title of the fourth section. World reflecting the revolutionary movements of industrialized society and the sufferings of the rebellions, or bewildered individual.

This section of the exhibition begins with Ibsen and Chekhov, fathers of contemporary drama and includes pictures from many current productions.

Text for the exhibition was Restoration to American musical shows and contemporary musicals.

The final section is concerned with the "Theatre in the Modern World" reflecting the revolutionary movements of industrialized society and the sufferings of the rebellions, or bewildered individual.

ADDING CHARM TO Your Home
By Bill Wieland

ONE FOR TWO

The one room apartment is of necessity a multi-purpose room. Its comfort and decorative success are more often than not dependent upon the adroit manipulation of space. It must be the quintessence of order with a place for everything and everything in its place.

The bed, the largest space stealer, and by far the most important piece of furniture in the room, should be chosen to add decorative beauty as well as to provide the ultimate in sleep comfort.

The double bed in the room, selected above all others, partially beneath the frame to diminish its size to sofa proportions by day. Frame provides handy storage space for pillows and blankets. Wallspace above frame is intensively utilized by sectional book shelves.

Dark green sail cloth spread and pillow covers were chosen to tie in with green foliage pattern of window draperies. Upholstery fabric has been repeated on lounge chair. Blonde modern unit group consists of cabinet, chest and writing desk.

The compactness and order of this room are due to the studied arrangement of just the necessary amount of furniture. The result, an attractive room with an uncluttered, uncrowded air. Come in and let us give you more suggestions for making your dual-purpose rooms more attractive.
