

Detroit Company Will Construct Tank Foundations

Foundations for the new city water tank on Derby near the first low bid of $10,976. City commissioners accepted the contract for construction by the R. E. Dailley Co. of Detroit.

Work will be completed before freezing weather, with steel tank construction planned for next March. City Manager Donald C. Robert said.

Celluloid, the first plastic, was developed in 1869 on a wood pulp base.

We Heard It Said By—

Stuart Baker, superintendent of Troy township schools: "We are attempting to set up a program which will help the boys and girls who don't plan to go to college. Only about 10% of the boys in this area go on to college, so we have to have a strong program to meet the needs of the 90%. However, we will still have courses which meet college requirements."

'Cooperation' In Vienna Is Deceptive

Korean War Seems To Have Softened Russians' Attitude

By ROBERT BALL
Special Correspondent For The Eclectic

VIENNA, Austria—In many ways, Vienna does not fit into the 1950 world. Placed more than 200 miles deep in Soviet controlled territory, it should be comparable to Berlin, where East and West gopher at each other across a border much more decisive than the Rubicon.

Instead in Vienna, Russian officers in uniform show in the U. S. Zone, American GI's ride the ferries wheel in the Soviet Zone, Prater, a French, Soviet Kommandatura meets regularly, and an American soldier all together in a jeep, drives conspicuously around the city.

Free circulation, no hint of a blockade. On the surface cooperation looks rosy. But is it?

I KNEW THAT there was no more cooperation at the top, that the Kommandatura meetings were only tokens.

But to find out how things were going at the most momentous of the International Patrol, I stopped in at 76th M. P. Battalion Barracks to talk to Captain Charles Goggans, young man in charge of the U. S. section of the Patrol. He was not enthusiastic.

"The Soviets live up to the letter of the cooperation protocol, but the spirit is lacking."

Under the Vienna Agreement, our forces provide five vehicles for the patrol, one for each Zone of Vienna and one standby.

PATROLLING GOES around the clock on six hour shifts, with command of each patrol in the hands of the members whose home Zone the patrol is working.

Incidents include all incidents involving troops or citizens of the Occupying Forces. Cases involving Austrians alone are left to the excellent Vienna police.

"The Soviets behave the way they are supposed to," Goggans continued. "They let us interview witnesses in their zone, they respect our nationals, don't hinder our investigations."

"At the same time, the cooperation is completely impersonal. Watch the Patrol before it goes on duty; the Americans, British and French are talking together and kidding around. The Russians stand off by themselves. They never mingle."

IN GOGGANS' opinion, it is obvious that the Russian soldiers have been ordered to avoid conversation with our troops, and that fear of being denounced by a secret agent in the guise of one of their fellow soldiers keeps them in line.

The few talkative Russians have had a short stay on the Patrol, he reported.

"If you get one alone, he will talk sometimes," Goggans went on.

HAWTHORNE

University of Michigan coaches fans and rooters are not the only persons concerned after the Wolverines two defeats this season.

Long before the season started, Ed Kirbert, local 'Y' secretary, acquired 50 tickets for a YMCA sponsored trip to the Michigan-Indiana game Nov. 4. Both squads were rated as pre-season choices for the Big Ten conference title. Kirbert reports that the response hasn't been as heavy as expected and quite a few tickets are left. He said that the price of the ticket will include bus fare and a meal.

Thomas Edison, during his lifetime, produced over a thousand patentable inventions.

Occasional official social contact between American and Soviet officers still persists.

"It seems that at least, that at these functions the Soviets have been more friendly and relaxed since Korea," Goggans asserted.

"Maybe that is a bad sign, but I think the truth is that they have learned respect for our troops. Before, I think they believed they could act high and mighty, because they thought we wouldn't fight."

"ABOUT NOON I drove down to the square in front of the Provost Marshal's office to watch Captain Goggans, whose turn it was, inspect the patrol.

The 20 members, mostly privates with a sprinkling of corporals, were lined up at attention. In their baggy uniforms and soft boots, the Russians looked young, but alert and smart.

"They put their best people on the Patrol," an American officer whispered to me. "We suspect they are disguised officers. By the way, we now that the one on the end, the bond one with the 'Hero of the Soviet Union' badge, is or was a spy agent."

"We found his identification card when we took over a barracks from them. I'll bet he would like to know what happened to it."

INSPECTION OVER, the Patrol broke up to wait for the section leaders to pick up the report slips. Without a word the Russians walked by in a rank, marched and sat down, backs to the others. "It's always that way," the officer said. "They never talk."
