

Kay Cooley Raises The Roof During Store Changes

"We really raised the roof," is the way Miss Kay Cooley describes the remodeling and enlarging of her dress shop on West Maple.

The roof at the rear of the store has been raised to allow the construction of a balcony office and alterations room, with the ground floor space being used for fitting rooms and stock display. With an additional enlarged area at the front of the store, the customer area has been nearly doubled. Miss Cooley said future plans call for basement storage space which will permit a corresponding stock increase.

The present work program is expected to be completed this week.

In 1938 the Canadian nickel mines produced 122,000 tons of copper-nickel ore. Fifty years after this tonnage had risen to over 11,600,000.

Niedermiller Speaks

Guest speaker of Women's Republican club of Southfield township Thursday evening in the Annie Lathrup school was Fred J. Niedermiller, American Activities chairman, Detroit's Association, American Legion.

Mr. Herman F. Luhrs, president of the group who presented the speaker, said he was the last speaker before the State Senate Judiciary committee at the public hearing Aug. 15, favoring Resolution G. This recommended an amendment to the Michigan State Constitution to outlaw Communism or any subversive activities and will be placed on the November ballot.

Niedermiller deplored the rise of Communism and subversive activities in this country. "Forty years ago Communism began a system to rule the world," he said. "William Z. Foster, long time president and his followers, have infiltrated Communism into our plants, offices, schools, homes and even our churches.

"Their policy suggests a form of slavery," Niedermiller warned. "Should they gain control of our country, all rights of free people would be gone. In Communistic Russia one owns land. Farmers farm as ordered and have nothing to say about sales prices. Living quarters are assigned and no one is permitted to own homes.

Children attend school where ordered and for a determined length of time. "One cannot travel and must where one is told and for how much and how long. Clubs, such as Elks, Oddfellows, Kiwanis and American Legion, would be liquidated if Communism ruled here. There are no free elections in Communist countries and their satellites."

Nate Ganley, an admitted Commie for 30 years, past owner of the Daily Worker, recently thrown of news stands, exhibited his contempt of the bill. He refused to answer questions put to him and insisted on lecturing the Judiciary committee at the hearing. Niedermiller pointed out.

"The only way to preserve our liberty," Niedermiller said, "is to go to the polls at the coming election, and put into office reliable, trustworthy, honest men."

Coach Blind Golfers

Douglas Gordon, 17, and Formor Coppers, 18, both of the village, are coaching two blind golfers in tournaments this week in which 16 blind persons are participating.

Harry Hunter, 37, state chairman of Blind Golfers is coached by Douglas Gordon. Hunter lost his vision in a series of accidents, following a college football eye injury. He is employed at Ford plant, assembly division, and resides in Herman Gardens. He is married to a blind pianist, who does her own housework. The couple has two children.

Nick Sotnek, 28, Detroit, was blinded in an accident at the age of three. He rewinds electrical motors. He took a course at Wayne university and stood highest in his class.

Tuesday they competed in a golf tournament at Hamilton, Ont. Saturday, they will play at Dearborn Country club.

Duties of the coaches are to place the ball, turn the men, gauge distances of shots, and help in any way possible.

Both coaches are golf enthusiasts, having played and caddied for years.

Personal Items

Bill Wagner of Cleveland Heights spent the weekend with the Eugene Himes of Santa Barbara drive. Nancy Himes motored to Cleveland to visit friends before leaving to resume her duties at Ypsilanti.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stock spent a few days last week at their Inn. Today, Thursday, Mrs. Stock will entertain her Detroit bridge club at luncheon in her home on St. Quentin drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. Luhrs returned to their home on Wednesday, following an extended vacation which took in the American Legion state convention at Grand Rapids; a wedding in Ludington and several days at their Higgins Lake cottage.

St. Sebastian Guild

Twelve members of the St. Sebastian Guild had breakfast together Tuesday, to welcome the return of the president, Mr. Lawrence Melancon, who with her husband returned from a six-week trip abroad. They found Sweden to be the most picturesque country, and the most prosperous. They visited many Cathedrals including St. Peter's in Rome, and an audience with Pope Pius XI.

Regular meeting of the Guild was this Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank McClorry of Royal Oak. Breakfast was served by the hostess at 7:30. A special feature of each member of the Guild with a blessed meal from Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Forbes spent last week-end in Toledo, visiting friends.

Participants of Saratoga boulevard accompanied their daughter Ann to an eastern school. They will be home today.

HORSE SENSE AND NONSENSE

By ALICE E. MORGAN
UTOPIA?

Not so many months ago I overheard a man say there was something to be had out of this country when its citizens were unable to have everything they wanted.

At a glance, that view of affairs would be wonderful, but how long would we like it and how long could such a country last?

The man down the street from your house wants to own his own car, he wants a new car and a television set. His wife wants a new refrigerator and washer. The kids want a couple of ponies and two bikes.

The whole family wants a summer cottage by a small lake where they can swim and loaf and sail and fish, without close neighbors to bother them.

Some of these things they cherish in their minds as dreams. In their hearts they know they will not get them, but they are still there as something to look forward to if they get a big break.

OTHERS ARE the goals toward which they can all work. The man of the family can (and will) do all he can to make that home of their own a reality.

His wife and children will devise their own economies to add to the "city" so they, too, may have their share of satisfaction when the big day comes to pay the contractor for his job.

The new car is something they can all look forward to and plan the trip they will take after they get it. The kids can hardly wait until the day Dad drives it home.

They know just what they will do and just which playmates they will take for the first ride in it.

The television set is in the same class. The whole family can work toward getting it and they can make their plans for its arrival. Dad sees himself, snug and warm in his own living room, watching the big football games of the season.

SONNY CLEANS up the holster and six-gun set and prepares himself for some pretty rugged sessions against those western badmen he's going to chase across the prairie.

Daughter is ready to prove to those little girls on the amateur deal to me. It just seemed I had to have them. Within a few weeks or months, something else took my fancy and the former went faded into the background.

I've tried to figure out just how life would be if every want was satisfied.

I can see myself needing a couple of dozen large storage establishments to hold the items I'd wanted and then lost interest in. I can also see myself with little or no incentive to work.

AFTER ALL, it is this desire for better things and better modes of living which has been behind all our progress. Without it we would still be living in caves, wearing furs, hunting with clubs and catching our food when, as and if, we could.

To the gentleman, his idea may have sounded wonderful. To me, it sounds like a wild dream I sincerely hope will never come true.

I'd rather do without a few things I really want and at least have a dream or two to work toward.

By advancing, we know we will be able to have more of the things we want out of life.

Just how the gentleman proposed to have everything handed out which one wanted I was not earth today he would find nothing new about 75-25 cupro-nickel coinage such as the United States five-cent coin. Even in his day the mint of his ancient Asian domain was busy turning out coins containing 77.5% copper and 22.5% nickel.

Thinking back, I can recall many things which I have wanted and which seemed to mean a great

Dixie, Yankee Street Closings Continued For a Second Time

A hearing on the closing of the sub ends of Dixie and Yankee, south of Villa, has been postponed again by the city commission.

The Monday hearing was continued indefinitely until more concrete plans were forthcoming from the Oakland Hospital board, which intends to build a new hospital on the Porritt site to the south.

This was the same reason the commission gave for continuing the original June 28 hearing.

Commissioners, in another hearing Monday evening, approved the closing of Crocyden road at the location of the city's proposed water tanks.

In snakes and gecko lizards, the tear duct opens into the mouth.
