Scouts Bring Christmas To Young Polio Patients

Christmas is a season when most of us are busy with families and friends, and our thoughts are centered on those we hold dear. A certain degree of selfishness can be found in our actions, as we strive to please that select circle and sometimes forget strangers who, without the help of others, would have no Christmas.

This, however, is not the case of a group of Beverly Hills Girl Scouts.

Their thoughtfulness and kindness is bringing Christmas to a group of boys and girls, patients in the Sister Kenny polio pavilion of the Oakland county contagious hospital. The Girl Scouts are learning the true meaning of the word "Christmas."

Christmas is a sock. Putting the thought into action, the girls promptly made a number of huge socks, which will be filled with small toys and games and the traditional orange to tuck in the toe.

They have carefully selected games which small, crippled hands can manipulate easily. Small puzzles which will not tire little people, games which will occupy their minds and give them many a chuckle.

Truly they are fulfilling the Girl Scout Credo of helping others.

ASSISTED BY their leaders, the girls have been busy making clothes for a number of dolls, which they think are the best presents in the world. They have made slacks, skirts, blouses, dresses, hats, and even coats so that each doll will greet her new owners with a complete wardrobe.

Through their weekly allowances from home the Scouts have financed the purchase of materials themselves.

NOT TO BE outdone, another group of Girl Scouts remembered that a pretty important part of
