George Kell, Detroit Tiger
Cook like the Kells
...ELECTRICALLY!

Charlene and George Kell are real boosters for electric cooking.

"It's much easier, cleaner and cooler with an electric range," says bobby Mrs. Kell. "It saves loads of time, too."

"And that means no extra 'K.P.' for me," adds George.

"It broils and bakes beautifully," continues Mrs. Kell. "The even heat of electricity makes a big difference."

"Try Charlene's recipe for ham and biscuits," urges George. "That'll prove there's nothing like electric cooking."

Take a tip from this attractive housewife and her famous husband. Go electric! See your appliance dealer tomorrow.

JEANNOT BARNES STANDS BESIDE her ceramic figure which was chosen to be placed in Chapman Memorial rock garden at Monticello college. For over two years Monticello art students have been competing for the honor of having their statue placed in the Chapman Memorial rock garden. When the competition ended the announce-ment came that Jeannot Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barnes of 788 Randall Court had won. Her 36 inch high ceramic creation of a small girl holding a dove was chosen.

Modern Design Exhibit At Little Gallery

BESS EDWARDS
The preview of the new exhibit at the Little Gallery was held Sun-day afternoon. This exhibit includes the paintings and drawings of Robert Knipschild, the sculpture of Tom McClure, the fabric dye Lind weaver, and jewelry by Pearl Shec-ter.

Tom McClure resident instruc-tor of sculpture at the University of Michigan works with stone, wood, alabaster and ebony. The carving which he chooses to call "Head of Christ" is in ebony. The works of Mr. McClure are recog-nized by critics far and wide as fine.

The paintings and drawings of Knipschild are unusual, in that they are on long horizontal pan-els and panels. In the medium which Knipschild chooses for most of his paintings. This 23 year old artist who received his B A and M A degrees in art in three and one half years has toyed with color and lines since early childhood. He has carved but prefers to paint be-cause he feels he can project his feelings much faster. Interesting and modern indeed are the works of Robert Knipschild.

JOY LIND whose weaving is an exhibit weaves unusual colors and threads into her modern designs. There is probably no just style in Miss Lind's work, she just does an unusually good job of combining color, design and craftsmanship.

Pearl Shecter, silversmith of New York, is represented in her jewelry. She is most well known for her unusual use of stones com-bined with modern design in sil-ver.

Jewelry, ceramics and paintings of previous contributors to the ex-hibit, are on still display.

Among the guests at the open-ing were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Win-gan, Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Di Marco, Edward Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Wal-lace Frost, Willow von Matke, Mrs. Kamet Aga-Oglio of the fac-ulty of the University of Michigan; several staff members of the De-troit Institute of Arts, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kelly and out of town guests from Ann Arbor, Chicago and Cleveland.
