BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

When we think of peace, most of us sooner or later think of a church and to many minds come the picture of a bird—the symbolical "dove of peace." The thought flitted across this Wanderer's mind Thursday morning while making a news check on church construction in Birmingham. As workmen shoveled dirt, hauled bricks and moved planks about in the basement of the Redeemer Lutheran church addition, a small, brown dove moved calmly from post to post. The bird seemed completely at home and not at all disturbed by the noise and confusion going on about her.

One of these "once in a lifetime" events will take place in Birmingham soon. In acknowledgment of his consideration and cooperation in the construction of their homes, several persons are getting together at a testimonial dinner for their builder, John D. Harrison.

Friday morning Mrs. R. J. Blanford of 2106 Buckingham presented another school problem. It seems that kindergarten youngsters in that area get bus service to the Adams school each morning but have no way of getting home at noon. Their hours do not coincide with those of the older children which leaves them without the benefit of an "escort."

In two-car families or those where the car can be left at home, Mrs. Blanford said, "the problem isn't serious. In my particular case, my husband has to use the car and I'm without transportation. I wonder if anyone in this neighborhood has an answer? I've thought of forming a taxi-pool or some such arrangement but do not know the names of any others in the area who are faced with the same situation. I'm wondering if the well-known Wanderer can help me out in any way."

We understand a new enterprise is about to take form in Birmingham. It seems a few citizens have come to the conclusion that a nice service would be to offer coffee and cakes to those persons en route to their places of employment, who are waiting for the east-west traffic lights to flutter to give them the go-ahead signal.

Progress of the new $500,000 addition to the Birmingham office of Michigan Bell is right on schedule, Bell Manager Walter Fauser reports this week. "Foundation work is being completed now," he said Friday. The addition is expected to be completed about the first of the year.

Groves told officers he did not see the approaching vehicle.

BEFORE you make any kind of deal on a new car, remember this: One of the most important things you buy when you buy a new car is its name!
