Wednesday, July 11. In spite of rain, practically all the parents attended the performance given by the children.

A day earlier, Tuesday, June 12, several parents invited the Nursery school children to their homes for picnics. Older children in the grade school baked cupcakes for a party they gave the nursery school which they called "Birthday Party" for all those who didn't have one during the school year.

FOURTH AND FIFTH grade students visited the Whitney Silver shop last week and the sixth and seventh graders were given quite a surprise. George Rowger, director of the school, told them all year about the "Doughnut Race" in the yard at his Franklin Village home and the fact that it bears doughnuts in the spring.

The children didn't believe this until he took them to his home last week and they found the tree covered with doughnuts. Approximately 500 persons attended the carnival at the school Sunday. There were no eating contests, games for fathers, a country store and hake sale for the mothers. In addition there was Turbo the big elephant, horseback riding, movies and other attractions.

Local Students to Attend Summer Music Sessions

By SUZANNE JONES

Having won scholarships offered by the Birmingham musicale, seven Baldwin students will attend Interlochen's all state high school music session and Michigan State College continuing education course this summer.

Any high school music student is eligible for one of these scholarships upon the recommendation of his instructor. An audition date is set, and he is judged by three members of the senior musical.

Winners are given their choice of attending Interlochen for two weeks or MSC three weeks, the club paying half the fees of $40.

CHRISTINE LEVERING, violinist, will participate in the all state high school orchestra at Interlochen July 2-22 and Ann Erickson in the band, July 23 to Aug. 5. Singing in the Interlochen chorus June 25 to July 8 will be sopranos Sheila Traylor and Joanne Greiner. Weekly radio broadcasts will be made from the camp.

Attending the Michigan State College continuing education course will be pianist Jane Kasten, cornetist Bill Berndt and trombonist Susan Fricker. These students will take private music lessons and music theory.

At the end of their stay at the college they will take part in the radio broadcast of the band and chorus concert.

Local Area Students Attend Cranbrook Summer Theatre

A total of 31 Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills students are enrolled in the Cranbrook Summer Theatre school and will be on hand at the Greek Theatre when Director Carl G. Wonnberger calls the roll Monday.
