BIRMINGHAM VETERANS NEWS

Compiled from Various State and National Veterans Information Centers

Veterans Administration have answered several questions veterans have been asking most frequently about the July 25 cut-off for starting GI Bill Training.

The July date applies to World War II veterans discharged before July 25, 1947—and this includes most who served during the war. Veterans discharged after the 1947 date have four years from their discharge date in which to begin training.

Many veterans have asked whether the filing of an application for training before the cut-off date is sufficient to enable them to train afterwards.

VA's answer is no. A veteran actually must be in training by the cut-off date in order to continue afterwards. VA said it will consider a veteran to be in training, even though he has temporarily interrupted his course for reasons beyond his control, such as the summer vacation.

A VETERAN who had once started a course and now cannot resume it because he has returned to extended active duty is also considered to be interrupted for a reason he cannot control.

Other veterans, in school under the GI Bill during the regular school year, have asked whether they will be required to attend summer school in order to return to class this coming fall, after the cut-off date.

Those veterans need not attend summer school, VA replied. Their summer vacation will be considered an interruption which is normal to all students—and therefore beyond their control—and they will be permitted to resume training this fall in the same field of study.

A NUMBER of veterans who have had GI training some time in the past have been asking whether, because of that fact,
