Local Baptist Women End Volunteer Work For Year in RO Home

Another year of volunteer work at the Baptist Children's home in Royal Oak is being completed by the Women's Mission society of the Birmingham First Baptist church.

The program has been under the direction of Mrs. George Jackson, 545 Watkins and Mrs. C. E. Griffin, 18210 Kirkshire.

One of 60 such organizations from the Baptist church in the Detroit area, the local group sends volunteers to the home to help the professional staff make a more home-like atmosphere for the children there.

One of the United Foundation Torch drive services, the home now has 27 residents and supervises 70 children in boarding homes throughout greater Detroit.

Through the various societies, such as the Birmingham group, a program of parties and picnics is planned for the children. In addition, the volunteers assist with sewing, mending, tutoring, helping redecorate the home and other homemaking services.

Boston Lecturer Tells City Group Of Christ's Work

Better health and happier relations in home and business, as well as financial abundance, can be demonstrated with scientific certainty by application of the rules for living as taught by Christ Jesus, declared Archibald Carey, C. S. E. in a public lecture May 10, on Christian Science.

"The Founder of Christianity, Christ Jesus, did not overlook ordinary everyday needs," Carey said. "When people were sick he healed them. When they needed money to pay taxes, it was provided. When the multitude were hungry and needed food, he furnished bread and fish. When they were unsuccessful in fishing, he showed them what to do."

He gave that unassumed rule for improving human relationships—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." He did not ignore human needs; he provided for them. His teachings were practical and effective.

"If we were able scientifically to understand and utilize the laws which Jesus used, should not we, also, be able to provide for these ordinary human needs?"

IT WOULD seem that a scientific understanding of the Christianity Jesus taught and exemplified should enable us to do this. That is what Christian Science is doing today for thousands of people.

Carey, a member of the board of lecturers of The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., spoke in Baldwin high school. He came to Birmingham to lecture at the services of The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The lecturer took note of the objection frequently heard, that the acts of Christ Jesus were miracles which cannot be performed today.

"JUST WHAT is a miracle?" he asked.

He then drew a parallel between the modern miracle of flight and the wonderful work accomplished by the master Christian long ago.

"The flight of an airplane," he continued, "the instant communication of radio, even the ordinary performance of today's automobile, would seem either impossible or miraculous to the ignorance of the opening years of this century. But all of these things cease to be miraculous as the laws that produce them are understood."

"FIFTY YEARS ago the laws of flight were not understood. Yet these laws were the same then as they are today. Our ignorance of these laws prevented their use in 1901."

"If we should consider the so-called miracles of Jesus with the same scientific open-mindedness, search for the laws involved, and learn to operate the operation of the divine laws which he so perfectly understood, might we not be enabled to understand the same laws he utilized and produce similar results?"

"THIS IS WHAT Christian Science is doing. People are being healed of diseases that are considered incurable. Desperate business problems are solved. Ordinary human needs are being met. The scientific understanding which Christian Science brings has transformed the lives of thousands of people. And it can help each one of us."

"The Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, says (p. 484), 'Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need.'"
