Jane Taylor Hood Selects Lace Over Satin for Rites

When Jane Taylor Hood met Philip Newell Skillman at the altar of Holy Name Church at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, November 17, she was wearing a gown of white chastily lace and tulle over satin.

The fitted, figured bodice of the bridal gown swept to a sweetheart neckline, and her long fitted sleeves ended in points over the hands. The very full skirt of nylon tulle was ballerina length.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Hood of Charing Cross road, chose a tiny lace demie cap from which fell a snow-length illusion veil. She carried white rose buds centered with a white orchid and sprigs of ivy.

KITTY A. HOOD was her sister's maid of honor in a gown of forest green taffeta, with a shawl collar forming an off-the-shoulder neckline. Completing her costume were three-quarter length sleeves and a full ballerina-length skirt. Her small matching cap was set off by a touch of veiling. She carried pink
