News About GIRL SCOUTS

Sunday, October 28, will open the seven-day celebration of Girl Scout Week. Birmingham's Girl Scouts and Brownies have chosen to join the nation-wide occasion in honoring the memory of Juliette Gordon Low, founder of Girl Scouting. They are participating in a world friendship service at the Community House at 4 p.m., October 28.

Miss Joyce Kaiser, president of the Senior Girl Council of Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit, will conduct a round-table discussion on international scouting. Miss Kaiser attended the encampment in Michigan last summer which was similar to the international camp held each year in Switzerland. Each scout set up camp with a foreign-speaking scout, and in that way they were able to exchange ideas and form lasting friendships.

TROOP 18, ADAMS SCHOOL

The Girl Scouts in this troop recently had an overnight camping trip. On Thursday, October 11, a regular meeting day, they prepared their campsite which was in the woods behind the K. Park Parish farm in Clarkston. They chose a spot on the hillside and returned on Friday afternoon with one large tent and several pup tents.

Good appetites took care of Friday's supper of soup and chili. Marshmallows and popcorn were eaten around the fire while the Scouts joined in group singing. Four Scouts slept out around the campfire.

There was a nature hike in the morning, and the girls enjoyed the rolling countryside and lovely Fall colors. They also explored a dried lake and did some badge work. At 6:00 o'clock Saturday evening, when they arrived home, it was agreed that it had been a most successful weekend.

One Scout had with her a field mouse which chewed its way through the box and was loose in her home for three days. It was finally caught with the help of her entire family, dog, several flashlights and a broom.

The Sixth-grade Scouts from this troop who were on the overnight are: Nancy Doherty, Karen Parrish, Mary Haldane, Pixie Vingling, Lorna Moore, Jan LeMensurier, Julie Hoover, Sue Carpenter, Virginia Paulson, Kappy Patton and Kay Mabley. They were accompanied by Mrs. J. Haldane, Mrs. T. H. Mabley and Mrs. R. G. Vingling.

TROOP 8, ADAMS SCHOOL

The fifteen third-grade members of Brownie 8 held an invitational service at their first meeting and also elected their officers. The secretary is Becky Farr, treasurer is Sue Wilson, scribe Nancy Gurley, and helpers are Margie Tanner and Jane McKinley. This troop has made a field trip to Mint's where they were shown how ice cream is made, and each girl

When Nancy Ann Ball became the bride of Bruce Hance on November 10, she can count as "something old" all the memories that were with her when she was later treated to a Dixie cup.

TROOP 41, WING LAKE

This is a newly formed troop of fifth and sixth graders and the first group of Girl Scouts at Wing Lake School. Leaders are Mrs. James Wright and Mrs. P. O. Johnson. After their first meeting at Mrs. Wright's home on Wing Lake Road, they had a marshmallow roast and played woodtag and other games. At their second meeting, held at Mrs. Johnson's home, they started to make their s'mores, a Girl Scout requirement. Officers are: Helen Martz, president, Beatrice Blakeman, treasurer, and Diane Aliman, scribe.

TROOP 22, QUARTON SCHOOL

Open House Held After Christening

Following the christening of their daughter, Mary Margaret, at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, October 14, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Skinner, Jr., entertained members of their family and friends at an open house.

The christening was performed at Holy Name church by the Rev. David Duncan. The party was held at the Skinner's home on Henrietta. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres were served the thirty-five guests.

Highlight of the table was a revolving musical carousel, in the center of which were pink and white roses.

Among the guests were the godparents of the baby, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Crichton, Jr., and her great-aunts, the Misses Louise and Annabelle Hayes of Marshall, Michigan.
