J. L. Hudson Zoning Matter Set for Hearing Nov. 8

Certain amendments to the Southfield township zoning ordinance will be considered at a special hearing called by the zoning board for Thursday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at Southfield 10 school, 10 Mile and Berg roads.

One proposed amendment would establish a new zoning classification known as regional shopping zone. To qualify, land must have a minimum of 25 acres.

Buildings in regional shopping zone would have to provide at least 7,500 cubic feet of content and have 750 square feet of floor space at the first floor level.

THE HEARING WILL also consider the request of the J. L. Hudson Co. to restore its two parcels of property in the southeast section of the township from residential three and commercial one to the proposed regional shopping zone.

Also to be discussed will be an ordinance governing the removal of topsoil. If the ruling is passed, persons will be required to obtain a permit from the building inspector before removing topsoil.
