Pierce St. Pavement Up Again

The Pierce and Southlawn street pavings were given a "second life" Monday night by the city commission but the fate of the proposed pavings still may depend on favorable board of education action.

The commission rescinded its action of last week to deny the necessity of the two pavings and then tabled the matter.

E. J. Kempf, 591 Southlawn, asked the commission what the whole question was about. A second resident of Southlawn, Paul Metzler, wanted to know just what could be done to improve the east block on Southlawn.

The commission agreed with Kempf when he contended that the problem was one of spending city money to benefit township residents.

COMMISSIONER LANCE C. Minor suggests that if the people of Southlawn were willing to shoulder the board of education's share of the assessment, the street could be paved.

The question of who is to pay the school board's share is one that the commission wants answered now.

Commissioner Frank Rising said that the board of education has raised the point of where the responsibility is, and now the question is whether to pay for it.

Meanwhile, two letters praising the school board's action were being read before the commission.

These residents were not in favor of making Pierce a main artery and were against the expense of the paving.

Rising contended his opinion that the school board had left an opening for the public to express their views on who is to pay the board's share. He believed that the board had not, as yet, made up its mind on whether to pay for the Pierce paving.

Commissioner Lance C. Minor contended that "after all, the city furnishes water and sewer facilities to the schools and does not ask the board to pay for them for school buses. If someone needs to start cracking the whip, we've got the whip crack."

"The possibility of the school board making some annual contribution to the improvements will be explored, according to Mayor Dean G. Beier.

"I know of a nearby school district that allots a certain amount each year to the city and the city pays the share of the improvements," Beier stated.

COMMISSIONER RALPH A. Main said, "I feel that the board of education will come through with their share in the near future."

Concluding the discussion, Rising asserted, "Maybe we can pave the streets around the school block and leave the school in the city. It's a dirty shame not to do something for these people."

The commission referred the Southlawn paving back to City Manager Donald C. Egbert for a revision of estimates based on just the east block of Southlawn and set the date for confirmation of the roll for May 12.

LABORATORY WORK PLAYS VITAL ROLE IN CANCER DETECTION
Slides are examined at Detroit Institute of Cancer Research

Cancer Crusade Begins

Vital services provided by the American Cancer Society, with 80 per cent of its budget met by the United Foundation, will be highlighted during the annual educational and membership campaign launched here this week.

The bulk of current funds for the Society's work in the area is represented by the United Foundation's grant of $430,000 to the Southeastern Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society. The balance will be raised during the April Cancer Crusade, renewing memberships throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties.

In order to let the people in this area know about the services, the Southeastern Michigan Division has prepared a pamphlet on the local cancer control program which is being mailed to residents here this month.

IN SOUTHEASTERN MICHIGAN, the program is carried out through the Detroit Institute of Cancer Research, the Yates Memorial Clinic, and the Michigan Tumor Registry.

All three of these agencies are housed in the Cancer Center, 4811 John R. in Detroit, which is the home of the American Cancer Society's Southeastern Michigan Division.

Through discoveries made in the Detroit Institute of Cancer Research, progress is constantly being made toward solving the final riddle of cancer.

Cancer education for both the medical man and the layman is vital so that cancer may be detected while it is early enough to cure by the three methods known today: by surgery, X-ray, and radium.

The American Cancer Society carries on a year round program of education, providing free films, literature lectures, tours, and similar facilities.

PERHAPS THE MOST outstanding current professional education project is the one on early cancer detection in the Yates Memorial Clinic. Here doctors may come to learn methods and techniques of detecting cancer, which can be used in their own offices.

Services rendered by the American Cancer Society and other agencies interested in the battle against cancer are saving lives and providing comforts to cancer patients here. Cancer detection examinations are important as the first step the individual should take to protect himself from cancer.

Oakland County has a highly developed cancer detection program conducted entirely in the offices of private physicians who have agreed to participate. It operates under the auspices of the Oakland County Medical Society and is coordinated by the American Cancer Society's Oakland County unit.

Information about participating doctors may be secured at the American Cancer Society headquarters, 4811 John R., Detroit.

MORE THAN 1,000,000 cancer dressings were made and distributed to cancer patients in Southeastern Michigan by the "Patients Aid" service of the American Cancer Society. The cost of these dressings, which are distributed free of charge, has been estimated at $40 to $50 a month for the average home patient if he had to purchase them himself.

In addition, a Loan Closet service is maintained, with loans to cancer patients of wheel chairs, hospital beds, bedding, and sick-room supplies free of charge. These materials, along with cancer dressings may be obtained at 810 N. Main street, Royal Oak, or at 75 W. Huron in Pontiac.

Sectional furniture has been ordered as has other equipment for the game room and lounge.

Harold M. Kalbfleisch, chairman, stated that his committee thought it best to wait before having an open house until when time the furniture was in place, the exterior of the building painted, and some work done on the landscaping and from interior work has been completed and committees are holding meetings there. Some group programs have taken place, but the majority of youngsters in the program have not been scheduled to use the building.
