Comedy Continues Through August 10 At Will-O-Way

The comedy, "Strange Bedfellows" by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, is being presented for a second week at Will-O-Way Summer Theatre. Under the direction of Will-O-Way producer William W. Merrill, the comedy will run through Sunday, August 10.

The plot, set in 1896, revolves around the woman suffrage issue of that period. The entire action of the play takes place in the Victorian drawing room of Senator William Cromwell's Nob Hill mansion in San Francisco.

The cast includes Gerald M. Harrington, Betty Gould White, Burton Wright, Elizabeth Phelan, Margaret Crosby and Stephen Pope. Others are Carolyn Burroughs, Robert Rimes, Lorce Carmick, Clyde Adler, Betty Jane Beck, Sandra Shipman and Joan Peret.

JUDITH HENDERSON

A COMPLETELY new air-conditioning system was installed this week at Will-O-Way playhouse, replacing the system formerly used. Since Will-O-Way transformed the apple barn into a summer theater twelve years ago, the same unit which originally cooled apples has been in use.

But due to the noise generated by the former unit, it was operated only during intermissions. Now the audience will be able to enjoy Will-O-Way plays, in air-conditioned comfort.
