"Picture Fair"
Attraction at Little Gallery

When "Picture Fair", the newest show at Peggy deSalle's Little Gallery on East Maple road, opened Monday, visitors were ushered for the first time into the gallery where stinging outdoor temperatures do not penetrate.

"Picture Fair", the result of Mrs. deSalle's recent combing of Europe for art works, includes thirty-five lithographs in color by contemporary French and Swiss painters.

The upper gallery is filled with oil sketches by Robert Gonzales who has achieved recognition among contemporary artists with paintings in Paris and on the continent. Her small sketches will be followed by larger canvases in the late fall.

Handling the exhibition while Mrs. deSalle is on the west coast are her assistants, Mary Jeff, formerly with the museum of the University of Kansas, and George Perry.
