Facial Foilage Removed By Politics

W. Carleton Scott, 5570 Red Maple lane, last week completely changed his outlook upon life. For years it would be more accurate to state that henceforth he faces life more openly, quite willing to come right out in public and allow people to see in more exposed detail the countenance that Nature gave him with which to gaze upon life's realities.

And, according to this local forerunner of the facial replica of Rip Van Win-ie, it took the combined efforts of millions of Republicans and a few-star general to effect the change.

In brief, Scott last week removed from his cheeks, chin and jaws, something less than a bushel of whiskers. He still retains a liberal mustache; but the whiskers are gone.

NO LONGER will little Birmingham children be able, after observing Scott's waving whiskers, to report to their parents: "Mama (or Daddy) how long is it to Christmas... I saw Santa Claus today... while he didn't have on his red suit, he did have a lot of whiskers and he was smiling... and I guess I better be good, too... Scott, who has taken a lot of kidding since his return from a Mexican vacation last spring, where he began the crop of whiskers, informed The Eccentric this week the real reason for removing them.

"I SIMPLY was waiting for the nomination of a Republican I am certain will reach the White House," he declared. "That happened when I was sure that I would win the nomination in October last week. Of course, this also means that he will win in November. I was thrilled over this Republican possibility, but I decided to look more like one, and remove my whiskers."

"After all, only the Democrats have resorted to the symbolism of Santa Claus through their paternalistic give-away programs, and I don't want to look like a New or Fair Deal advocate of the welfare state."

WINNER, SEVENTH NATIONAL TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST

MEMBER OF THE UNDERGROUND—You may laugh at this pocket popper's buck teeth, but he won't. His chisel-like incisors are just about the most important things he owns. He uses them for digging tunnels, cutting roots, stems and tubers. The little rodent's teeth grow a total of approximately 48 inches a year, or about six times his body length, according to a recent study made by the University of California's College of Agriculture. And how'd you like to spend a year looking into that face in order to measure those teeth? Huh—but even for scientists!

31241 Laheer, Bloomfield township, and Edward N. Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Schneider, 273 Euclid, are undergoing Infantry basic training at the 10th Infantry Division, Fort Riley, Kansas.
