Play It Safe!
 In the last year, the Birmingham Fire Department has responded to many fire alarms in partly constructed homes. Most of these fires have been started by youngsters playing with matches. They have ignited highly flammable insulating material or piles of building paper.
 The children either carried the matches to the building or found the workmen had left them. Many children have barely escaped with their lives after they had started these fires, for buildings in a semi-finished state burn furiously because of the lack of plastered partitions and other restraints.
 THEN, TOO, many children have been injured recently when playing in these buildings. They have fallen through holes in the floor or walked out on scaffolding which were not solid.
 To be sure of your child's safety, see that they do not visit the PARTLY FINISHED houses next door alone or without an adult accompanying them.
