★ Smile a Minute

"Children today are not alert and observant," the school superintendent declared and proceeded to illustrate by having the youngsters call out numbers for him to write on the board. If they said 467, he wrote 746, transposing figures each time with no comment from the youngsters. Just as he turned to the teacher with an "I-told-you-so" look on his face a small voice from the back of the room called out: "Write down seven-seven-seven, and see if you can change that around, mister!"
