TEACHER-STUDENT PANEL DISCUSSES UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE PROGRESS
Foreign students did educators in understanding world problems.

Cite Progress Of Institute Formed By UN

At a recent citywide teachers' meeting, the five representatives of the Birmingham system who had attended the United Nations Institute in New York in February presented their report in the form of a panel discussion.

On the panel besides teacher delegates were three foreign graduate students from the University of Michigan.

Miss Donna Mrwa, Lebanon; Miss Maya Deb, India; and Kialoo Kang, Korea, president of the International student association, gave their views on what the UN is accomplishing, relations with the United States, and recommendations for bettering international relations.

Representing Birmingham schools at the UN institute this year were Miss Dorothy Allen and Miss Angelina Gaziano, Birmingham high school; Miss Muriel Brub, Barnum; Miss Madeline Rue, Adams; and Mrs. Daisybelle Richards, Franklin.

Commission Sets May 19 Hearing On Road Oiling

Birmingham city commissioners have scheduled a public hearing for May 19 to discuss the city's extensive 1952 road oiling program.

In presenting the list of streets scheduled for treatment, City Engineer L. R. Gare pointed out that none had been in any oiling program before.

He added that he felt the completion of this proposed 4-mile program would have the city's dirt nuisance pretty well under control with the possible exception of a few scattered blocks.

Gare suggested a coat of light oil be spread immediately which would eliminate the nuisance until such time as the construction of oil mats and the application of heavier oil could be done.

The proposed treatment will carry a two-year guarantee instead of five, and will cost an estimated $35,000, of which the city would pay $14,000.

Gare said the light oil treatment would take about three days to complete, and the application of such a program could be worked into a schedule which would come up every two years for re-evaluation.

Handicap Tourney To Draw 250-300

Public links golfers of the Birmingham area are invited to participate Sunday, May 4, in the first handicap tournament of the season under the auspices of the Michigan Public Links Golf Association at Edgewood Golf club on Commerce Rd. Len Cunningham is the tournament chairman.

The entry fee is one dollar and the greens fee will be paid in addition at the course, according to Ernie Fuller of the host club.

Indications show that from 250 to 300 players will participate in the tournament which will see the first participants leaving the tee at 7 a. m., continuing through the day. The course will be closed to other than tourney entrants, Fuller stated.

Anyone can play in the tournament, according to Cunningham. He must have a record of his last 15 scores to establish a handicap for the event. If these cannot be produced players must play from scratch, he stated.

Entries should be sent to Public Links treasurer, Clyde Bates, 15038 Dolphin, Detroit 23, Michigan.

Lights in Sky Riddle No 'Mystery' At All

They weren't taking any chances, that small group of men standing around the Grand Trunk station last Sunday night. They wanted the police there, on the double so to speak, and they wanted adequate protection for their community.

After all, those two red lights, hanging so ominously over the business section might mean more than anything.

They might be the lights of a flying saucer, hovering over downtown.

Whatever they were, the men felt they had no business there and intended to see to it that, somehow, they were forced to move on.

JUST HOW the local police were supposed to accomplish this is not known, since the lights appeared to be quite a distance above the streets.

The alarm was received at headquarters just as the police shift was changing, so double the usual number of men were aware of the danger hanging over our heads.

The police duly investigated and their homes and the community at large faced no danger. The lights were right where they were supposed to be, clearance lights on the top of the water tower at Hunter boulevard.

MISS SANDRA PULS, a senior, also attended the institute under sponsorship of the local Rotary club as a prize for her winning essay in the "Youth for Understanding" contest.

The foreign students were frank in their analysis of the opinion of the United Nations in their countries. They especially approved the student-exchange program but felt more American students should study abroad.

They believed America had done much for education, especially in Lebanon and some parts of India. All three expressed hope in the UN program but not so much confidence.

MR. KANG considered the UN "a matter of life or death" in Korea, and Miss Deb said India, newly independent, was vitally interested in the UN and its program and looks to the United States as representative of revolt against imperialism.

In addition to the program for the teachers, the delegates summarized what they had learned from their attendance at the institute and made recommendations for activities on the part of the schools to promote international good will and understanding of the UN and its aims.

Among "things for our schools to do" were exchange of letters, students and teachers with foreign countries; study of geography to promote world consciousness; education for world citizenship; encouragement of publication of reliable materials on controversial issues; enlistment of community support in the study of world problems; and the inclusion of world literature in the school curriculum.

Drivers Needed For Camping Trip
Parents of youngsters attending the YMCA overnight trip May 9 to Camp Obeyes at Holly, Michigan, are urged to telephone the Birmingham Y and volunteer their time and cars to take the youngsters out. Cars are needed for both Friday and Saturday afternoons. The parents do not have to stay overnight and maps to the camp will be furnished.

Plans call for the motorcade to leave Birmingham at 3:30 p.m. and arrive in camp before 5:00 p.m. Youngsters will receive cabin assignments, then have time for boating and canoeing before dinner. There will be a campfire program and movies. Saturday the group will engage in archery, nature lore, games and swimming.

A TREASURE hunt will be held before lunch and the afternoon will be open for the youngsters to use the canoes and boats. The homeward trek will begin about 4 p.m.

The Junior high group of the Presbyterian Church is joining with the Y in sponsoring this project. Cabin counselors are students from Birmingham High School and those in charge of the program will be Miss Shirley Cloutier, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Kibbert, and Walter Van Hise. Youngsters planning to attend should contact the Y.
