Suspense, Drama On Opening Bill Of St. Dunstan's

The ever-popular, spine tingling suspense drama "Angel Street" by Patrick Hamilton, has been scheduled as the first production of the season by St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook.

The play, which will be open to the public, will be staged at the Cranbrook Pavilion on Lone Pine road, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 10-11 and 17-18.

"Angel Street" is a tale of domestic malice and mounting excitement in what appears to be an average house in Victorian London. Here the suave yet sinister and handsome Mr. Manningham is slowly torturing his gentle wife into insanity.

Heading the committees for this season are John Blanchard, set construction; Hubert V. Davis, entertainment; Dr. Dwight C. Ensign, photographic; Mrs. Everett Fisher, properties; Mrs. Carl Klidder, publicity; Mrs. Carl Moyer, tickets; Sheldon R. Noble, reading and Mrs. Warren Pease, make-up.

Other committee chairmen include Mrs. Marshall Walker, secretary; Mrs. Anthony Rinsdell, costumes; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Saunders, house; Mrs. Schneider, lights; and Milner Thom, design.

Localite Takes Bride In Bermuda Ceremony
 A wedding of interest to Birmingham residents took place on Sept. 18 at Hamilton, Bermuda, when Miss Mary Margaret McWhorter of Nova Scotia became the bride of A. J. Arthur Lloyd Hoover of Birmingham.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Cleo Hoover, 244 Townsend, and the late Mr. Hoover.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John McCarty, brother of the bride, in St. Theresa's church.

Mrs. Hoover flew to Bermuda to attend her son's wedding. The young couple has returned to Birmingham for a short visit before going to Alabama where the groom will be stationed at Maxwell Field.

Society deadline is 3 p.m. each Tuesday.

Will-O-Way Opens Apprentice Class For Winter Study

The Will-O-Way apprentice theater will begin Oct. 4, starting a fall and winter study program for children and adults.

Operating during the summer for 12 years, classes have been attended by young people who have completed high school. The new course will be designed for boys and girls from 6 to 17, with another group for young couples.

Celia Merrill Turner will head classes in dramatics and the theater, assisted by William W. Merrill, director of the Summer theater. She will also teach music and music appreciation.

Opening classes, designed to create gratefulness through musical coordination, will be taught by Richard J. Perz, one of the three nationally known tenors in Michigan.

Students will be assigned to class according to their ability. All groups will be kept small for a maximum of personal attention. A special class for four-through-six year olds will be in music and its appreciation, where, from the start, children will be helped in composing. They will have their choice of instruments after they have learned to read and write music.

Information on the courses may be obtained by calling Mrs. Kathryn (Celia) Turner or William Merrill.

Have You Met . . .
 The newcomers from Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Strachan and Mrs. Strachan's mother, Mrs. George Strachan, are now making their home at 1274 Melton road. Strachan is office manager for Anderson Bros., manufacturing and engineering company.
