Bride Wears Sisters' Gown For Candlelight Ceremony

For her Wednesday evening nuptials to James Scott McCall, Margaret Horn chose the wedding gown worn by her sister, Mrs. Jack L. Overman, at her vows a year ago.

Both are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edward Horn, Jr., of East Frank Street.

The bride and the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott McCall of Fairfax road, repeated their vows by candlelight assisted by the Rev. Perry Williams, assisted by Dr. Glen Harris, at Christ Church, Cranbrook last night.

The blush pink bridal gown was fashioned with a tight bodice and full skirt, and was finished with a long train. The lace on her Peter Pan collar was taken from her mother's bridal gown, and a lace tiara held a long veil.

MRS. OVERMAN came from White Plains, N.Y., to be her sister's matron of honor. Her waltz-length gown was a blush pink tulle and featured a keyhole neckline, short sleeves, a tight bodice and full skirt.

In a similar gown in a blue shade was honor maid Nancy L. McCall, the groom's sister. Bridesmaids Mrs. Richard H. Groves, Susan S. Hubbard, Judith E. Olson, and Laura Lee Raymond, all of Birmingham, wore alternate shades of pink and blue.

All the bridal attendants carried violets and pink geraniums.

Richard H. Groves was the best man. Seating the guests were Jack L. Overman, Theodore W. Swift, a cousin of the bride from East Lansing; Theodore E. Herbst, Lt. Russell C. Davies of Toronto, Ganak, E. James Erwin, William S. Gilbreath III, and Gerald G. Hughes.

Mrs. McCall wore a waltz-length gown in a champagne shade. Brown baby orisith formed her corsage.

When the newlyweds left the reception the bride was wearing a light blue and white checked suit with pink and navy accessories. The couple are motoring west to Colorado Springs and after the first week in April, will be at home in El Paso, Texas, where the groom is stationed at Fort Bliss.

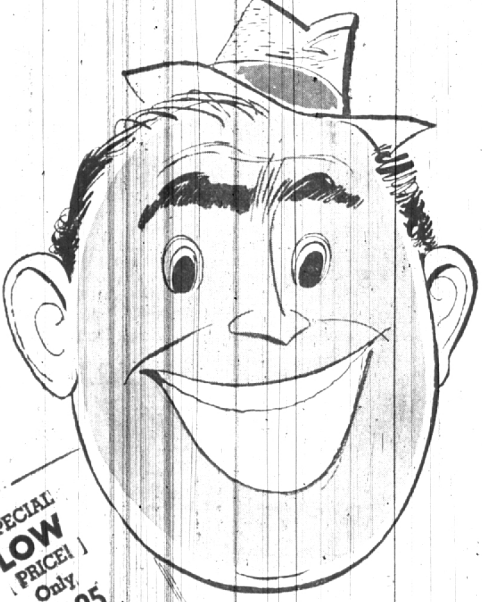

Society deadline is 3 p.m. each Tuesday.
