Springdale Offers Alternate Rate To Club Members

Two types of Springdale Golf Course memberships will be available this season to Birmingham residents.

City officials had recommended to change the previous membership fee of $15 per family to a straight $5 adult membership and $2.50 per child with half-rates being charged on the course to membership holder.

Increased operational costs were cited in the recommendation for rate changes.

City commissioners have voted to keep the original $15 family membership and to offer also the new plan proposed by park officials.

Commissioners felt that the higher rates would penalize those persons who used the course frequently and decided that the former membership fee should be left open to these customers.

B'ham National Wins Citation For Ad Material

The Birmingham National Bank was one of 50 banks in the nation, and the only bank in Michigan, to receive a citation as a result of its entering the annual "Forum In Print", an exhibit of advertising material submitted by 314 banks of all sizes.

The announcement was made recently by "Banking", journal of the American Bankers Association, sponsors of the forum. It was held at the New York University School of Commerce, March 17 to 19.

The displays, which represented banks in 43 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Hawaii and Norway, were exhibited to bank and advertising executives at the New York University School of Commerce where the forum was held.

THE 50 winning entries, including the presentation of the Birmingham National Bank, have been placed on exhibit at the NYU Graduate School of Business Administration and will be shown at the summer session of the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University in June.

Mrs. Edith Peck of the Birmingham National Bank directs the bank advertising and prepared the presentation for the forum.

Art Museum Show Features Work Of Local Artist

Paintings by Wallace Mitchell, well known Michigan artist and teacher, will be shown at the Museum of Cranbrook Academy of Art through April 27.

Although Mr. Mitchell used a realistic approach in much of his earlier work, during the past eight years he has developed an individual abstract style of great richness and has kept to a personal scale which has made his paintings much sought by private collectors, Miss Eva I. Gatling, Museum curator, comments in the catalogue foreword.

"He paints exclusively in abstract forms, with which he never tires of experimenting and in which his sensitivity and fine craftsmanship are most apparent," Miss Gatling observes.

A NATIVE of Detroit, Mitchell received his formal training at Hamilton College, and Northwestern and Columbia Universities. He came to Cranbrook Academy of Art to study with Zoltan Sepeshy in 1934, and joined the faculty as a painting instructor in 1936. Since 1944 he has been secretary-registrar of the Academy.

While Mitchell's paintings have been shown annually at the Michigan Artists exhibitions, and have been exhibited at local galleries, this is the first retrospective showing of his work. The present exhibition of 80 paintings, to which 34 private and public collections have contributed, includes many which may be seen locally for the first time.

Museum hours are from 2 to 5 p.m., except Mondays, when the building is closed.
