STRAIGHT TALK

It is barely possible that you may be interested in maintaining (or retrieving) your lawn this fall. It has been a tough season on some greenswards. There are a few important things to be considered (even if you don't feel like it) in working on an established lawn (grass plot).

1. WEEDS—Tackle them right now by hand, with chemicals or with the lawn mower.

a) By hand—no comment!

b) By chemicals—use 2-D on broadleaved weeds — potassium cyanate (CRAB-NOT) on crab grass — CWK on chickweed and quack grass.

c) By mowing—this method we like! Rake the crab grass so it stands up like a little soldier then set the lawn mower as low as it will go and then knock the soldier's heads off. Catch them with a grass catcher or sweep them up afterwards. Now rake the grass again — at right angles to the first raking — and mow again. Looks pretty brown, doesn't it? Well, the crab, quack and weeds won't grow up again this fall. But the good grass is not dead.

2. FERTILIZE—We have said it before and now repeat that during the year one cuts off about 48 inches of grass. This growth is not the result of prayers alone. It comes from nourishment in the form of a 10-6-4 fertilizer, such as WOODRUFF'S GROSSOD or STADLER'S TRIPLE X. The sooner you put it on the sooner you can sow grass seed.

3. SEED—In view of the fact that we don't let our lawns go to seed and rain millions of seeds onto the soil, so that every bare spot is covered, we have to add the seed ourselves. A thick turf is a joy (as you may have heard), and being thick it helps to reduce the influx of weeds.

It is very expensive this fall due to failure of the blue grass crop (less than 1/2 the normal amount was harvested). It is important, therefore, that you measure (not guess) the area to be covered—allowing one pound of seed to each 400 sq. ft.

NEW LAWNS

Space does not permit a discussion of all the various problems in connection with the development of a new lawn. We don't know it all but feel sure that if you will talk with us before you spend any money we can put you on a fairly straight and economical path towards the accomplishment of your aims.
