Romantic news of a distinctly local flavor highlighted a tea given Tuesday by Mrs. Carl F. Haase of Devonshire road, when 40 guests honored Barbara Hannum, daughter of the Walter A. Hannams of Beverly road. She will become the bride of Lt. Eugene Haase on Sept. 6. The pair will be married at a military ceremony held at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., where Lt. Haase is stationed with the army. This afternoon, Mrs. Frank Mc-

Isaac and Gertrude Haase are having a kitchen shower for the bride-elect at Mrs. McIsaac's home in Detroit.

Gertrude Haase has just returned from a two-week motor trip through Canada and the eastern states, with Winifred Kelly and Joan Reid.

The West Beverly Garden Club will meet at the Bedford road home of Mrs. Harriet M. Croneweth on Aug. 27 at 1 p.m. Mrs. D. J.

McCormick, a recognized gardening authority from the Rosedale Park club, will show colored slides. Gardeners and would-be gardeners from this area are invited.

The Stewart Bartons of Dunblaine road, returned recently from a week's stay at their summer cottage on Lake Wixom, north of Midland. They have enjoyed occasional weekends at the cottage during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Checkaway, of Warwick road vacationed at Portage Point inn, near Frankfort, the last three weeks of July. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Checkaway, and son, Jack, of Lathrup.

The Paul Bunyan country of Manistowic claimed the undivided attention of the James Leaches of west 11-Mile road, recently. They visited friends in Winnipeg, his parents in Brandon, and his sister in Kerketon, and still had time left over for sightseeing at Clear lake, in the Riding Mountain national park.

Official notice of admission to the University of Michigan awaited Jean Seitz on her return Saturday from Camp Crystal Lake, where she spent the summer as a counselor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Seitz, of Norchester road, graduated with highest honors in June from Little Flower high school, and won an honor award in a competition held at Ann Arbor last spring. The Seitzes took a spur-of-the-moment jaunt up to Crystal Lake one week-end recently, for a visit.

Back from a three-week stay at Crystal Lake are the Jack Qualmans of Beaconsfield road, with sons Jay and Al. During one afternoon spent at the nearby national music camp at Interlochen, they thoroughly enjoyed attending four one-hour concerts and—but for the intercession of a pair of music-logged boys—would have stayed on for opera in the evening.

The Stanley Andersons of Devonshire road, with children Robyn and Tommy, returned last week from a three-week vacation. Mrs. Anderson and the children visited for two weeks at the home of her parents at Balsam Lake, Wis., where they were joined by Mr. Anderson for a further trek up to Olen, Minn., to visit his family. They came back by way of Duluth and the Iron Range.

And who says it's not stimulating to get up and go to work in the morning? Ask Joe Fortin, who lives on West 14-Mile road. He is affiliated with the GM Detroit Transmission plant which made headlines last week with its disastrous fire. In his office, the tipoff of trouble came when all lights in the plant went out. The smell of smoke was closely followed by the sound of many feet heading for the nearest exit. It's business as usual for Fortin however, as there was little damage done to his office.

MRS. DAVID CLARK STUART

Carries Heirloom Prayerbook To Candlelight Nuptial Vows

A prayer book originally belonging to her great-great grandfather was carried by Beverly Virginia Jones to the altar of the Marcha Mary Chapel of Greenfield Village, Dearborn, by Mrs. Stuart.

She and David Clark Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Stuart of Sunset boulevard, Lathrup, were wed in a candlelight ceremony by the Rev. W. P. Lemon at eight o'clock Saturday evening, August 15.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Karr Jones of Goldenacre drive, Lathrup. Her gown was styled along coronation lines with a fitted bodice and open neckline with standup collar of Chantilly lace which also edged her long, pointed sleeves.

A triple-tiered bouffant skirt fell in accordion pleats of nylon net, and she wore a fingertip veil with a coronation tiara. On her prayer book, the bride carried a white orchid set in shobbers of stapanotis and ivy.

Barbara Jones was her sister's maid of honor. She and bridesmaids Mary Ann Harrigan and Dorothy Hayes wore gowns of blue net over tulle with highlighted veils of white Venice lace. The attendants carried baskets of pastel flowers and ivy.

VERNON PEELE was the best man, while Thomas Walker of Ann Arbor and Robert Edgar of Farmington served the guests.

For her daughter's nuptials, Mrs. Jones chose a floor-length dress of pink nylon net and lace over tulle with matching accessories and Lester Hubbard roses.

Mrs. Stuart was in floor-length gown of mauve nylon net over tulle with a lace bodice.

A buffet supper in the Clinton Inn at Greenfield Village followed the ceremony.

THE NEWLYWEDS are honeymooning in the Upper Peninsula for two weeks. On her departure the bride donned a pink wool suit and box jacket, many accessories and a white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will make their temporary home in Ann Arbor while their new home in Dearborn Township is being completed.
