Troth of U. of M. Graduates Is Announced at Garden Party

Relatives and friends from Birmingham and their former home, North Muskegon, gathered at the Sheffield road home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil A. Moore late Saturday afternoon. It was there they learned of the engagement of the Moore's daughter, Harriet, to James W. Manning, son of Mrs. William H. Manning of Fairway drive and the late Mr. Manning.

AFTER HER graduation from the Emma Willard School, Troy, N. Y., the bride-elect attended Denison University where she was affiliated with Delta Gamma. She is a June graduate of the University of Michigan, and is now attending the Mesher School of Business in Chicago where she is taking a four month secretarial course.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Oliver Military Academy, and received bachelor and master's degrees in business administration at the University of Michigan, where his fraternity was Chi Psi. He will leave for active duty with the Army in September.

No definite wedding date has been set.

If anyone should ask Fred Grosius what single modern device he considers the greatest contribution to human comfort, he would undoubtedly answer "Windex" screens." Back from Europe, he reports that, even in the most modern hotels abroad, screens are unheard of, with the result that tourists spend many a sleepless night dodging mosquitoes. And, Paris couturiers notwithstanding, on Olivia avenue Saturday evening for cocktails and a late supper. Guests of honor at the party were the Max Laus, also of Olivia, who plan to move into their new home in Livingston very soon. The guests who presented the Laus with a large mailbox for their new home were: John Clarke, Richard Cones, Lester Ashes, Jack Gillman, Louis Levenezes, Earl Potters, Louis Pedicino, George Seeders, Donald Strong, Arthur Todd and Donald Vandermeers.

British women are better-dressed and better-groomed than the French, in his opinion. Grosius, who lives on Devonshire road, and his father, Fred Grosius, Sr., took their car along, and spent two months touring England, Switzerland, Belgium, France, Germany and Holland. They returned to this country July 20.

A meeting of the West Beverly Hills sewing group will be held next Tuesday, Aug. 11, at 10 a.m., in the home of Mrs. Henry Jones, on Bedford road. All area women who are interested in sewing are urged to attend. The current project is making little girls' blouses and skirts. Group members will bring their own sewing equipment and sandwiches. Dessert will be served.

Devonshire road, have returned with their daughters, Kathy and Kris, from a two-week vacation at Point Nipigon, on the Straits.

The E. J. LaRose family of Buckingham road, are back from a week's trip through the Smokies. En route home they stopped in Lakewood, Ohio, to visit Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Fultz for two days. Last weekend the LaRoses entertained houseguests, Mrs. Mary Schultz, her children, Patty and Lanny and July McCoy, of Lakewood. The three children extended their visit through this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones, and daughter, Pamela, are back from a week's vacation at Higgins Lake.

The F. J. Cranen of Warwick road, spent last weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William Krall of Detroit, at the Grotto Inn, near Fort Huron.

Home from a three-week trip to California are Mr. and Mrs. Archie Brown and children, Melody and Bruce, of Kinross road. They were in Los Angeles and Long Beach for two days, and spent the balance of their time in the San Francisco area where they visited Brown's mother and sister.

Gallery Marks Third Year

There are, figuratively, three candles burning on the Little Gallery's cake. The art gallery, marking its third year at its East Main road location, is sporting a brand new interior, the work of Cranbrook Academy of Art student, Kenneth Isaacs. The twenty-four year old Isaacs is a graduate of Bradley University, Peoria, Ill.

Featured in the new settings is an anniversary exhibition which will continue through September 12. Making up the show are drawings by Paul Klee, watercolors by Herbert Bayer, sculpture by Richard Gale, paintings by Theodore and Barbara Luderowski, and fabrics by Maria Kipp.

KLEE, BORN in Switzerland in 1879, studied at the Art Academy in Munich and was one of the first to be influenced by the 'primitives'. Along with Kandinski, Mackle and the originators of the 'Blue Rider' group, and, after the war, became associated with the Bauhaus in Munich. Klee has sometime been called a dadaist or surrealist, but predicated both and has outlived at least one. His works are represented in leading museums and private collections the world over.

HERBERT BAYER, a native of Austria, is also a product of the Bauhaus in the Twenties where he taught advertising layout, painting and photography. Bayer, whose chief work is in the field of color, left Germany in 1938.

Richard Gale, head of the wood shop at the Cranbrook Academy of Art for the past two years, is a graduate of the Rochester Institute of Technology, Rochester, N. Y.

The twenty-six year old artist has just finished the execution of wire sculpture, stable and mural in the executive lounge and conference room of the Ford Rotunda. He has been awarded a year's scholarship by the Fulbright Foundation for study in Copenhagen this coming year.

THEODORE L U D E R O W S K I, head of the design department of the Cranbrook Academy of Art during the past five years, is a graduate of Columbia University. He received a fellowship in architecture at the Cranbrook Academy in 1939, and studied under Eliel Saarinen for five years.

Barbara Luderowski, a native of New York City, studied at the Carnegie Institute of Technology School of Fine Arts. She has also studied under Kuniyoshi and spent two years at the Cranbrook Academy.

MARIA KIPP, the Austrian born weaver, has contributed a group of panels to the exhibition at the Little Gallery. Miss Kipp's fabrics are represented in museums throughout the United States and Europe.
