TROOP 310—WING LAKE
Is busy rehearsing Christmas carols which they plan to sing at the old peoples' home around the holidays. They are also bringing food from home of fill Christmas baskets. On Dec. 12 they are planning a roller skating party. Barbara Stacey brought the nibbles to the last meeting.

TROOP 363—BALDWIN
The girls are practicing their Christmas carols and will start making Christmas presents at their next meeting. The following officers have been elected, president, Cynthia Scott; secretary, Nancy Murray; treasurer, Martha Miller.

TROOP 375—QUARTON
This troop recently had an inventory and invited their mothers in to witness their becoming Brownies. The girls wore their uniforms for the first time and received their pins from leaders with the help of Lisbeth Bryner, already a Brownie. Refreshments were served. The following girls received their Brownie pins, Patricia Wyatt, Kathleen Thompson, Suzanna Crampell, Patricia Roach, Linda Hanson, Elaine Hudson Judy McKewen, Sandra Schmetzky, Julie Ericson, Mary Lou Bunyan, and the twins, Gerry and Betty Breedlove.

TROOP 324—FRANKLIN
This warm fall weather has made this troop want to be outdoors, but they have had many projects to work on which kept them busy inside. Some of the things they have been doing these past months are:

The troop carried out preparations and plans for a campout at Island Lake, which had to be cancelled, and an all-day hike at Kensington took place instead. Their leader has since showed the girls colored pictures which she took on this trip. The girls planned to make some little doll favors to be used as Christmas tree decorations. Girl Scout week they helped wrap Halloween prizes for the Birmingham parade, and placed an exhibit in Woods store window. They waited on table at the Franklin Community fair and later to give all their "tip money" to the Torch Fund.

Early in the season the troop had a "Birthday Party", turning back the calendar to the beginning of the troop. A recording of the troop's history was heard and a skit presented giving the activities of each girl in the troop today. Only two girls are members of 324 who were registered in the original Brownie troop. Guests were girls' mothers and the original leader, Mrs. Andrew Sutherland and her daughter Susan and a member of the original troop committee, Mrs. Chester Hard and her daughter Susan.

The troop plans to take part in a joint Christmas party with all the Junior and senior high troops and are busy practicing Christmas carols. They have decided to earn, as a group, the Torch award, which is their way of learning more about the Torch Fund and the agencies it supports, one of which is their own Girl Scouts.

They plan to do volunteer work at the Sarah Fisher home and to have a joint party with another troop, the Gray's. These are part of the requirements of the Torch Award.

The following girls have been elected as officers of this troop, president, Carolyn Lamberson; treasurer, Janet Heidemann; scribe, Elizabeth Campbell. Girls who represent this troop on the Junior Planning board are Marylin Gaywood and Jean Troutstead.
