Waiting for a Family

That's right! This lovely four-bedroom colonial home, surrounded by trees and set far back from the street, is perfect for a large family. The spacious living room—with a fireplace of course—the bright, airy dining room on the front of the house and the library with a Dutch door accessible to the outdoors, lends to the finest kind of family living.

The kitchen, complete with pantry, has plenty of room for eating space as well as much work area. Added feature on the first floor is a lavatory, located close to the library or playroom, as well as a walk-in cloak room.

And in the summer, the large side screened porch and the really big back yard (entire lot 100 by 189 feet) lets the whole family live outside. Plenty of area for play equipment, and lots more for a vegetable garden and for flowers. Of course the porch provides space for family eating and also a grand play center on rainy days.

The open staircase with graceful balustrade ascends from an extra large front hall. Four bedrooms, two planned for even three to sleep comfortably, are complemented by a big family bathroom.

Wait, that's not all! Third-floor stairs lead to a great amount of storage space and to a secluded room just made for study or for peace and quiet. This attic hideaway is heated, with the added feature of an open fireplace.

Other features of this very livable home are a new oil furnace, fresh paint job on the exterior, two car garage, a completely fenced yard and proximity to both public and parochial schools, bus line and to the business district of Birmingham.

Now, who could ask for anything more? The price? Just $29,500. Come see us today and let us show you this home just made for family!
