Wing Lake-Foxcroft News

By JILL ROBERTS
Mayfair 6-3022

Most prominent of recent events in this area was a tea given on Wednesday, May 20, in honor of Mrs. Geneva Forslund, of Pontiac, at the home of Mrs. Edward Proctor, of Wing Lake Road, from 11 to 5:30 p.m. Mrs. Forslund has attained a singular distinction in the educational field. As a teacher she is celebrating her twenty-fifth year at Wing Lake school, during which time she has established an enviable record in the teaching profession and acquired hosts of friends in this area. A silver tea service, engraved with a personal inscription, was presented to Mrs. Forslund by the Wing Lake Mothers and Teachers club in commemoration of her years of service and outstanding contribution to this community.

Pouring at the tea were Mrs. Walter H. Tamm, president of the Wing Lake Mothers and Teachers Club, Mrs. John R. Davis, past president, Mrs. John Allman, President-elect, Mrs. J. W. Gillette, Jr., Mrs. Kenneth D. McGregor, and Mrs. Alfred L. Bellis, all of Wing Lake. Chairman of the affair was Mrs. Charles B. DeVlieg, assisted by Mrs. Charles A. Siebman and Mrs. J. H. Hertzler. About one hundred guests attended.

Little theater devotees of Wing Lake and Foxcroft are eagerly anticipating the opening of the Will-O-Way Playhouse on West Long Lake road on June 8. William W. Merrill, founder and director, states that publicity on the initial performance will be a benefit, the proceeds of which will go to the Greater Detroit Chapter of the Greater Detroit Chapter of the benefit performance committee is Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, of Grosse Pointe.

Interest is rising high concerning the horseman's hobby as at Outland's Riding Stables on May 23 several local equestrians are appearing in the event among whom are Janet DeVlieg, 7 and July DeVlieg, 10, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeVlieg of West Long Lake road, and Lynn Benjamin, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome F. Benjamin of Franklin Court. Starting at 8:30 a.m., performances will be given by all 24 classes, ranging from the lead rein beginners, the walk, trot and canter groups to the more advanced horseman's presentations. Featuring drill formations, figure eights and jumping. In addition to the equestrian show, a trophy will be presented for competition among the drill teams directed by instructor Jack Kellough according to Miss Nancy Fisher, member of the personnel in charge of the program. Other instructors assisting at the all-day show are Zelma Outland and Mrs. Blackstock. The horseman's show is an annual event sponsored by the management of Outland's Riding Stables.

The recent Kentucky Derby found Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Edington, of Wing Lake road, among the huge throngs of spectators at Churchill Downs. During their four-day stay in Louisville they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Bleakley, of Louisville. Frank O'Callahan hosted them on Saturday at the renowned "Derby Day Breakfast." The Edingtons found time during the busy weekend to entertain guests Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hadley, of Detroit, and Mr. Glen Kline, of Toledo. Not mentioned too frequently these days in the Edington household, for obvious reasons, is a horse by the name of Native Dancer.

Friends of Miss Joan Ellen Kelly, of Wing Lake road, are interested in the diamond that glitters on her third finger left hand. The engagement of Joan to William Frederick Lebeckens, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lebeckens, of E. Outer Drive, Detroit, was announced recently by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kelly, Jr., parents of the bride-elect. Plans are in motion for a summer wedding.

On Wednesday of this week Mrs. Harvey B. Sanderson of Thurber road entertained at the Grosse Pointe Hunt club with a program of monologues. The occasion was a dinner party given by the Detroit Oto-Laryngological society for the ear, nose and throat doctors of Detroit. In keeping with the Alaskan theme, king salmon was flown in from the Yukon especially for the event.

Last week neighbors on Thurber road welcomed home Mr. and Mrs. William S. Warner and son Bill. They spent three weeks at the Lombardi hotel at Miami Beach, where Bill confessed from injuries suffered in an automobile accident last January. He is progressing splendidly and expects to resume classes at Birmingham junior high next fall.

A recent holiday proved especially enjoyable for Mrs. Bruce Harding of Worthington Street. Mr. and Mrs. Harding motored to Ann Arbor to spend Mother's Day with their university student daughter, Mrs. Genevieve Maxwell. They were guests at Tyler House where a dinner was held and also attended by 16 students most of whom originated from foreign countries. Orchids from Hilo, Hawaii by special arrangement of one of the Hawaiian students, contributed a festive touch to the occasion. Following the dinner the group witnessed a pageant of 16 international dances in native costume at the Hill auditorium, presented by the International Committee of Student Legislators. The performance was augmented with a running commentary by President Harlan Hatcher and Rajsh Gupta, Indian student from Bombay.

Bradford College Alumni Meet Tuesday in Hills

Alumnae of the Detroit Bradford College are going to take to the country for a May 22 dinner meeting when Mrs. Frederic Sanders will host the group at her home on Ewing lane, Bloomfield Hills.

On the agenda is a report of the Sesqui-centennial Development drive recently completed in this area. Club officers include localities Mrs. George Jacoby, president; Anne Bennett, secretary; and Beverly Whiting, treasurer.

Localities Will Sing With Rackham Choir

Directed by Maynard Klein of the University of Michigan, and accompanied by Mary Helen Munson, the Rackham Symphony Choir will present its spring concert Tuesday evening, May 28, at the Rackham Building.

Choir members include localities Frances Gullian and Eleanor Whelan. The concert, the group's first since appearing twice the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in March, is open to the public.
