Few Reserve Seats At Royal Oak Tilt

Only a limited number of reserve seat tickets for the Birmingham-Royal Oak football game Thanksgiving Day are available at the Hill school building, according to Frank Whitney, Birmingham athletic director.

The game, when in Royal Oak is sponsored by the Royal Oak Kiwanis Club, Whitney explained. The Club sent the Birmingham school district less tickets than the demand will probably call for, according to school officials.

Award Contract For Storehouse At Springdale

Springdale Park will get a new cement block building to house park equipment and pump for the park water system.

City commissioners have approved the $3,723 low bid of Claude Bennett of Royal Oak for the building's construction. It will be erected about 75 feet north of the Girl Scout cabin.

Mr. Wright's topic will be "A Great Time to Be Thankful." While in Birmingham he served as assistant to the Rev. Arnold F. Rain, minister of the First Methodist church.

He joined the Masonic Lodge in Marquette where he served for five years after leaving Birmingham. He is also a member of the Consistory Valley of Marquette and is a 32nd Degree Mason.

At Mt. Clemens since last June, he is a member of the High Twelve group there.

Residents Protest 14 Mile-S'field Shopping Center

Residents in the immediate area of 14 Mile and Southfield don't want any neighborhood shopping center near them, they emphasized to city commissioners at a rezoning hearing Monday night.

Up for consideration was a request by owners of six lots on Southfield north from 14 Mile to have the zoning changed to business from its present single family classification.

Commissioners tabled the petition until they can meet with plan board members to discuss the advisability of approving the rezoning petition.

It was claimed the lots were not desirable for residence, and the area presently was not being served by neighborhood markets.

DECLARED Charles S. Kinnison, 1338 Latham, "We all are concerned over what happens at this edge of town that might draw people into the area."

"As long as I have a car, I will drive two miles to shop. If Southfield has a need for marketing centers, why can't they set up their own?"

Other residents said their area did not need shopping facilities at this location, and if such were permitted to locate there, it would depreciate the value of their residential properties.

Five Church Fives To Open Season

Teams from Redeemer Lutheran church, First Presbyterian, First Baptist, Christ church, and Kirk-in-the-Hills have been working out weekly for the opening of the church league on Thursday, Dec. 10.

Defending champion, First Methodist church, has not decided whether or not they will defend their intermediate division championship. Teams are expected from St. James and Southfield United Presbyterian churches before January 1.

Winner of the local regular season will represent Birmingham in the district church play-offs in March.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

MRS. GILBERT GOODE, 647 Woodland: "This new long-distance system of the telephone company may be wonderful for some people, but it certainly is going to be a headache for others. Phones have a fascination for children and what's going to stop them from dialing some of those distant cities and having their parents frantic when the telephone bills come in? We'll have to start locking our phones up or suspending them from the ceilings on pulley arrangements."

Seek to Expedite Construction of Pembroke School

Every effort is being made by the city to hasten the final arrangements by which a Troy township area can be served with sanitary sewer facilities, thus permitting the construction of a new elementary school, representatives of the Pembroke Manor Assn. learned Monday night.

The association, according to a letter from J. H. Climer, the group's president, is anxious that the city take action "which will expedite the completion of Pembroke school" on Eton road, north of Derby.

Said Commissioner James Allen, "We appreciate the stakes involved, but I wonder if you can suggest what we should do that we haven't done?"

RESPONDED Climer, "Perhaps the city could permit a temporary tie-in of sewer facilities until the permanent installation was made."

City Manager D. C. Egbert, admitting a temporary connection was possible, added, "Troy Supervisor Norman Barnard told me today that all parties are about ready to sign the proposal which Troy outlined last week."

The proposal referred to by Egbert described how the four parties—the school board, the Presbyterian church and two developers, Arthur Nechman and the Frank Groebel Corp.—would divide the costs of supplying water, storm and sanitary sewers for the area under consideration.

NECHMAN TOLD city commissioners Monday night that he was ready to sign the agreement. Commissioners, however, still have to work out the details of how the city would be reimbursed for sewage disposal to the area.

City Declines To Keep Trucks Off Southfield

A petition to keep truck traffic off Southfield road was turned down by city commissioners this week.

They agreed with Commissioner Dean G. Beier who said, "I think this request is something we shouldn't even ask the police chief to study."

The petition's suggestion that trucks be kept to 14 Mile road drew this additional remark from Beier, "I wonder what residents along 14 Mile would say to this." City Manager D. C. Egbert suggested "a more reasonable approach" would be to try and get through traffic around the city, rather than through it.

Circulated and presented by A. C. Utter, 872 Southfield, the petition bore 38 other signatures.

County Asks Notice Of Street Vacations

In his capacity of Oakland county drain commissioner, Birmingham Mayor Ralph A. Main requested the city commission henceforth to notify the drain commission when the city decides to vacate a street.

Main asked that this be done so the county can determine if it should act to retain easement through the property affected.

Commissioners stated that no street vacation has involved a county drain so far, but that they would file Main's request for reference in future cases.
