Two-Month Southwestern Trip Enjoyed by Rosa Family

Douglas Rosa, 3906 W. Lincoln, will never forget June 12, 1954. That was his 12th birthday and the day he left with his parents, the George Rosas, on a two-month tour of the Southwest.

It was just like being on the trip yourself to hear the Rosas describe a memorable meal eaten at a small restaurant in Laredo, Texas, which was flooded one week later with 50-feet of water from the raging Monterey river.

The family went on to Mexico where they stopped at the town of Zimapan and put up at the Posada Del Rey, an inn operated by one of the most famous Gilbert chocolate makers.

Doug and Mr. Casasa hit it off real well—in fact, Doug was given a Mexican pony to ride, tours of the old silver mines and 15 pounds of silver to bring home and Casasa was given an invitation to visit the Rosas whenever he came north.

After a trip through the Floating Gardens of Mexico, the Carlinbad Caverns, the Petrified Forests and the Grand Canyon, the Rosas arrived at Durang, Colo., a town called the "Switzerland of America," located 7,700 feet above sea level.

At Elk Hoen lodge they enjoyed a very unusual swimming pool whose water came out of the side of the mountain at 140 degree temperature. This water was then tempered until it was comfortable for the swimmers.

Doug still had prospecting on his mind and so did his one rainy day they drove over to Telluride, Colo., an old mining town still rich in gold and uranium, they say. The 60-year-old records were still there as to what had been found.

Rosa was ready to start prospecting right then and there but it was time to start home.

It was a grand trip from beginning to end and the Rosas took colored movies of the sights they wanted to record. Imagine the fun they'll have taking the trip again some cold winter evening!

The Walter A. Markins of Chula Vista lane have been so busy this summer both inside and out, that they just decided to take their va-surprised the Droeges by having their garden free of weeds upon their return. That was a real vacation!

Neighbors at home on West Lincoln drive were neighbors at the lake, a week ago when the Dr. Edwin DeJongh and daughter, Darlene, and the George Strubers and daughter, Jane, spent a week together at hotel Berdel at Higgins lake. Darlene and Jane practically lived in the water while their folks divided their time between the golf course, the lake and a lounge chair.

Mrs. Russell D. Hughes and two friends, Mrs. H. G. Doss and Mrs. H. G. Perkins made a day of it last Friday when they drove down to Ohio to buy some blankets at the North Star Mills. Even after they were loaded down with blankets they just couldn't resist stopping at Blafon, Ohio to get some good country meat at good country prices. They agreed it was all so tempting that if they could, they'd each have bought a side of beef!

The David B. Falconer family with the reservation that when the job was completed they might go back to the lake. The activity around that acre is astonishing these days.

Mrs. Jack Beruo of Jackson Park drive had guests last week. Her mother, Mrs. K. R. Smith from Mansfield, Ohio brought Mrs. Beruo's grandmother, Mrs. Lincoln Joy, who hails from Council Grove, Kan., for a three-day visit. Mrs. Joy, who is 86 years old, really enjoyed her visit and especially her four great-grandchildren, Jeff, Jana, Jane and Jay.
