World Support For New Calendar Is On Increase

Considerable support has been voiced in the United Nations in favor of the adoption of a new world calendar. The new calendar would make every season of the year the same number of days—ninety-one days and thirteen weeks.

Moreover, the four quarters would be identical in that the first month of the identical in that the first month of the identical in that the first month would contain thirty-one days and the second and third months would contain thirty-one days include thirty days.

To solve the problem of Leap year, and other adjustments, the calendar would provide for a new day—World's Day—which would follow December 30th every Leap Year, and would follow June 30th every Leap Year.

THE NEW CALENDAR is arranged so that each month contains twenty-six week days. Four of the months contain five Sundays, but the week-days remain the same in all of the months. Each New Year would begin on Sunday, January 1st and each working year would begin on Sunday, January 2nd.

Every quarter would begin on Sunday and would end on Saturday, and World's Day, which followed December 30th every year, would be a world holiday.

India proposed in the December meeting of the Economic and Social Council of the U. N. that the question of the new calentary is the second of the Economic and Social Council of the U. ALTHOUGH THERE were abstentions in this voting, in addition to the two negative votes, there is reason to believe that a majority of nations at the U.N. is in favor of the Indian proposal. The primary reason for this sentiment is the fact that the moon makes its circuit around the earth in twenty-nine and one-half days, while the earth makes a complete circuit of its orbit in about three hundred sixty-five and one-fourth days.

The new calendar would also allow dates, such as Easter, to be stabilized. The effort to reform the calendar has been actively pushed for the past fifteen or twenty years, and was supported by fourteen nations when the League of Nations submitted the question to all governments in 1937. We are in favor of calendar reform, believing it would achieve what must eventually be achieved in the way of calendar computation. Although there may be disadvantages and even objections, and although the present calendar cannot be improved or that it is not the duty and obligation of this generation to improve it. "So Many Paths, So Many Creeds . . ."

It is presumed, in human society, that the best minds in every land are seeking Truth and Righteousness. Yet how many trails have been blazed through mankind's original forests of ignorance and supersti-tion to today, as the aumerous religious denominations have sprung up for spiritu-al leadership.

al leadership. Over in Chicago 1,800 Christian church delegates, from 61 countries, representing 161 church groups, have held a World Conference; their object is to decrease the number of denominations. Perhaps, adding all things up, their task is even greater than the international regulation of the atomic and hydrogen bomb.

Indeed, if they become better able to Christianize human beings, they will have solved the bomb problem—for war only can be spawned when human society fails to measure up to its Divine origin!

Chance for Reward Results in High Standards

Here are two current and significant statements:
"Traditionally, our government has sought to create and maintain a democracy of opportunity in which individuals have the general freedom and the specific opportunities to work, to spend, to save, and to invest, and the invest, and the invest, and the invest, and the invest these opportunities to the fullest extent. "If our economy continues to provide incentives for people to produce, to invent, to invest, and to devise better ways of providing the increased goods and services our growing population will require, a 70 per cent increase in real per capita income may be anticipated by 1975."

It is noteworthy that in both cases emphasis is laid on investment. The incredible wealth of material things we enjoy has been made possible because mil-lions of individuals have put a part of their savings in the securities of enter-prises in which they have faith. That prises in which they have faith. That wealth increases as more people of moderate means do the same thing.

It's not a coincidence that socialists and communists and all the advocates of totalitarian government spend much of their energy denouncing such institutions as the stock exchange.

For investment, which the exchanges make possible for everyone, is the heart and soul of the free enterprise system. And if that system ever collapses, all the other freedoms will die with it.

Asleep, Mankind Makes No Trouble

When human beings are asleep, it goes without saying that they can do no harm. Since it is only from people who are awake that mankind's troubles originate, isn't it too bad that, by legislation, laws cannot be passed requiring certain segments or all of this earth's population to remain asleep . . . especially when some of them begin to brew trouble?

For example, if the men in the Krem-lin could be put to sleep for, say, a couple of centuries, wouldn't this earth be filled with less trouble?

Wonder why the United Nations boys and girls haven't thought of this!

From The Eccentric's Point of View...

Regrettable tragedy came to five local and nearby boys and girls when their automobile left the road and struck a tree on the Rochester highway, a quarter of a mile north of East Maple. It occurred at three o'clock in the morning, following a party given for one of the victims. This tragedy ought to make an indelible im-

One's conscience is defined as that deep inner quality in human beings that argues against doing anything, or saying anything, that is harmful to the society in which one lives. No price is high enough to pay for the suppression of the good urges of conscience—yet some people place a very cheap price tag on this divine quality.

Newspaper readers perhaps are more familiar with the "typos" which occa-sionally occur in the papers they read— those transposed letters which give an unusual turn to the thought being ex-

However, some of these unusual thought expressions stem from the reporter him-self—when he must be thinking about a pay raise instead of the sentence he is writing.
