BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

VOTERS WILL BE GREETED with a new emblem for the Repub-lican party when they go to the polls in the November 2 general polls in the November 2 general election. The vignette pictured here has just been adopted by the teen along the state of the pictured here has just been adopted by the tee in honor of the 100th anniversary of the party. The ballot emblem depicts Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president and President Dwight B. Eisenhower, present head of the country.

DURING THAT lovely, lovely rain which fell Saturday, this Wanderer saw a group of youngsters just standing in it. Fing one lad moved from the lawn to the sidewalk and called his companions over, admonishing them to stand there so all the rain could fall on the grass and "not get wasted on you govs".

THE WAY TO win a newspaper editor's heart is to be prompt with copy. If one remembers that the Community House is closed for the month of August, they will know at once the feeling of affection that The Eccentric staff holds for the staff there. You see, bright and early Wednesday morning, we received copy for their schedules the first week in September! The fall and winter activities get under way on Sept. '7.

MECHANICAL HORSES can be as unpredictable as the real kind, college student Milton A. Trisler III, 680 Rivenoak, has come to believe as a result of an experience last week. He was out in the family's garage, which is attached to the rear of the house, and was making some adjustments on the engine of his car. All off a sudden the engine came to life, and young Milt, astride a fender and with his head under the hopd, found himself carried forward and into the garage wall. Fortunately for himself, the car, house and garage, the vehicle stalled before it had more than bulged out the wall. He still is trying to figure out what happened, because he wasn't anywhere near the car's ignition system.

TRANSCRIPTION OF THE RECORD in the "Triangle TRANSCRIPTION OF THE RECORD in the "Triangle Rezoning" case still is expected to be finished by late summer or early fail, this week reported the city's counsel, Clark J. Adams. "The stenographer is a bit delayed by other records which must get out ahead of ours" he reported last tweek to the Birmingham city commission. The city is appealing to the state supreme court a circuit court decision of several months ago which in effect would permit business to be developed between Eton road and the rabiroad, north of E. Maple. Because the 3-inonth time limit is about up for the appeal to be made, Adams said he would have to obtain the court's permission for a time extension.

HABITS OCCASIONALLY BACKFIRE, as one Birmingham woman discovered last week. Early one morning she noticed an odor which was verging on the offensive. All day she and her housekeeper tried to trace it down. No results. That evening she began to write a letter to her daughter, reached into her purse for a penthere was the smelly object! An assortment of meat scraps she had wrapped up Saturday night at a restaurant, intending as soon as she had returned home to give the morsels to the family's dog.

WITH HIS JAMMED-PACKED camining schedule entering the final stages, Philip A. Hart of Birmingham, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor, made Michigan political history July 25 when he took to the air in a helicopter to keep appointments at a series of pienies in Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties. Hart, former legal advisor to Gov. Williams, plans to use the helicopter further in the campaign when nedessity calls for it. Planned originally as an experiment, Hart said that he "was highly satisfied with, its use." The new height in Michigan campaigning was reached, when campaign strategists found that they had scheduled too many meetings to be reached by other transportation. Rather than take a chance an alienating any picnickers who were awaiting Hart, they decided to get them all in by using the "eggbeater"

DRIVING OUT Oak street last Friday morning this Wanderer met up with some of Birmingham's fauna which seems to like the idea of living dangerously. A small squirrel dashed into the middle of the street, picked up a nut and started back to the curb. Whether the animal was too young to carry the load of had sore teeth,

SOMEWHERE ALONG THE LINE in its study of the unofficial city finance department report on the public library's past fiscal year. The Eccentric lost a good-sized wad of dough. "It was enough so that you reported we were a us in the black." Fine-ancially speaking, Miss Lloyd, we tried to figure our way through that city report. We admit we

—but merely want to say we are volume-ously displeased with our shelves.

BIRMINGHAM OFF-STREET PARKING proposals are expected to be brought up for renewed discussion when the city commission meets Aug. 9. It is reported that results of the recent downtown traffic survey will be ready for submission that night by the city's traffic engineering consultant.

BIRMINGHAMITES WHO TRAVEL high speeds on busy BILLINGHAMILES WHO TRAVEL high speeds on busy highways should bear in mind that it requires twice as much distance to safely pass a car traveling 70 miles per hour as it will at 50. At 70 you need almost the length of 15 football fields to complete the pass safely while at 50 you need only the length of 8 football fields, B'ham Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley advises.

ONE OF THE country's most famous TV hosts was a guest last Friday evening when the Don Millers entertained at cocktails and dinner at Bloomfield Hills County club. Guests of honor included Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Sulivan and Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis of New York. Sullivan, of course, is well known for the host spot he plays on "Toast of the Town".

IN CONTROLLING DUTCH ELM DISEASE, it appears IN CONTROLLING DUTCH ELM DISEASE, it appears unreasonable for Bham Elm tree owners to tackle the task of spraying their trees themselves when they can hire comercial dealers to do the job more effectively and more economically, According to William R. Lebold, city superintendent of forestry and parks, the cost of spray equipment alone is enough to discourage those citizens who have considered doing the job themselves. Lebold discourages citizens attempting to spray anything larger than sapling elms.

THERE'S GOOD NEWS at The Eccentric Office for some little child. An honest, kindly lady handed this Wanderer a brown suede purse with a small sum of money in it Tuesday morning, saying she felt styre some little girl was broken hearted at having lost it. Well, all the youngster has to do now is stop at the office, tell us about her purse and money, and it is hers again.

Electronics Champs In Softball League

Electronics Service nine took the softball championship of the Birmingham YMCA Intramural League by finishing one-half game in front of Albans Food service.

The results of the games played last Tuesday, August 3 between Michigan Bell and Reevee' Service and the Albans Food Service against Detroit Edison determined the standings for the second, third, and fourth places in the league. Results of these games were not available at press time.
