CHILEAN GROUP SECOND TO VISIT LOCAL SQUADRON THIS YEAR

Local CAP Fetes Chilean Cadets

In spite of language barriers, the six Civil Air Patrol Cadets visiting Birmingham from Chile last week, managed to get along splendidly with their hosts. The visitors had only a limited knowledge of English and the Birmingham cadets knew less of Spanish. However, the groups discovered that fun, food and fellowship really need no language. This was proven first when hosts and guests met at the Birmingham Community House for an informal evening of dancing, entertainment and refreshments. To make their guests feel more at home, a group of Spanish-speaking Detroiters were special guests, with a number of young girls presenting typical Spanish dances.

WITH THE language barrier thus knocked down, the Birmingham unit went on to entertain their guests with trips to interesting spots throughout the area, including Cranbrook Institute. Recreation came in the form of swimming parties and a picnic Saturday at Springdale Park.

IN THE three years that Birmingham has taken part in the exchange, the local squadron has been hosts to young people from Portugal and England, prior to the 1954 groups.

An officer of the Birmingham squadron remarking on the exchange said, "It gives these youngsters a chance to see how others of their age live and work. Through our visitors, our members have made close friends in foreign countries, a wonderful way to promote peace and understanding."
