Large Turnout Attends Club's Sip and Chat Cocktail Party

Getting better acquainted with neighbors was the incentive that brought a turnout of over 150 area residents to Birmingham Country club last Saturday evening to attend the West Beverly Hills hostess club's "Sip and Chat" cocktail party.

Many of those who attended the party stayed on at the club for dinner, as guests of country club members. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. John Powers, and the Bernard O'Meara, guests of the Bradley Stephenson.

Others who entertained guests for dinner at their homes were the party's chairman and co-chairman with their husbands, the Don Dittichs and Charles Vogels.

BIRTHS

A son, Steven Paul, was born Nov. 2 to MR. AND MRS. PAUL MERVIRTA of Royal Oak, Mrs. Mervirta is the former Nancy Sweeney of Birmingham.

A son, Jeffrey Burton, was born Nov. 24 to MR. AND MRS. JUDSON PECKHAM, 1180 Villa.

A son, John Nicholas Dreystadt, Jr., was born Nov. 29 to the JOHN DREYSTAITS of East Lansing. Mrs. Dreystadt is the former Margaret Van Hengel, whose parents are the Garrit Van Hengels of Pleasant Ridge. Dreystadt's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Good of Redline road.

A daughter, Cynthia Dora, was born Nov. 24 to MR. AND MRS. EARNEST J. COLE of Hattensut Hill, Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Burnor of Wing Lake and paternal grandparents are the Howard A. Coles of Royal Oak.

West Beverly Sewing Group will meet for a luncheon at the tables on Dec. 14, at 12:30 p.m. Chairman of the affair is Mrs. E. W. Conover, of Bedford road.

Members of the West Beverly hostess club held a Christmas party Dec. 7 at the home of Mrs. Ernest George, on Hillcrest boulevard. Co-hostess for the party was Mrs. William Black of Kirkshire road.

For their Christmas project, each club member will send five cards, each card enclosing a dollar, to residents of the Oakland County and St. Elizabeth Briarbrook homes for the aged.

HOME FROM TRIP
 "Home hopping" to Beverly road, call their recent trip to Cuba, Jamaica and Haiti. With the A. V. Witbeck, of Birmingham, they stayed a week in Havana, flew to Jamaica, where they stayed two days at the Tower Isle hotel, then "hopped" over to Port au Prince, Haiti, for a four-day stopover at the El Rancho hotel.

The coles found Haiti's scenery breathtaking, and the people artistic and happy, in marked contrast to the Jamaicans, whom they considered a very unhappy people.

BAZAAR WORKERS

It's church-bazaar season again, and time for many area women to dig out those favorite holiday recipes and beloved crocheting closets of a dazzling array of hand made articles, some of which were made as early as last spring.

The congregational church of Birmingham, starting the season early with its bazaar the middle of November, received some able assistance from Mrs. H. M. Goodhue, Mrs. William Hickey, of Bedford road, Mrs. Dalton Lamb, of Newchester road, and Mrs. Charles Rully, of West 14 Mile road.

Even earlier in November was the First Methodist church bazaar, where permit little whipped up by Mrs. Wayne Stettbacher, of Hillcrest road, Mrs. Harold Roamer, of Mayfair lane, and Mrs. Arthur Lane, of Bedford road, sold readily at the candy booth. In charge of the snack bar was Mrs. Hugh Hombill, of Mayfair lane, and holding forth at the apron booth was Mrs. Robert Hutchinson, of Beaconfield road.

"Holiday for Things" was the catchy title given to the bazaar held at Our Lady Queen of Martyrs church last Saturday. Mrs. C. J. Somers, of Kirkshire road, supervised arrangements for the youth club's refreshment concession, where her daughters, Jean, Joan, Connie and Judy, were kept busy "serving them up."

At the St. Christopher guild's "village store" booth, the theme was carried out with clever use of a pot-bellied stove and a cracker barrel. Decorations chairman for the booth was Mrs. John Bekolas, of Evergreen road, assisted by Mrs. George Platon, of Riverside drive and Mrs. Robert Anger, of Hockingham road.

Mrs. Alvin Knorr, of Bedford road, with Mrs. Herman Feibig, of Birmingham, was co-chairman of the Lutheran church bazaar on the first and second of December. Mrs. Harry Hovener, of Mayfair lane, and Mrs. C. J. Schroeder, of Devonshire road, chairman of the doll and toy booths, were on hand for both days of the sale, surrounded by a wide assortment of hand made articles that represented many months of planning and work.

Mrs. Edward Hill and Mrs. Doris Ansteth, of Kirkshire road, invited 28 guests to luncheon at the Lutheran church on Dec. 1, after which their guests did a little Christmas shopping at the bazaar.

A luncheon and fashion show was the choice of the ladies of the Shrine of the Little Flower, for a Christmas project. Chairman of the fashion show, held last Thursday at Oakland Hills country club, was Mrs. John Powers, assisted by her co-chairman, Mrs. Hugh Dean, of Birmingham.

Stagework Done by Local Lad for Princeton Event

When the curtain goes up on the Princeton Triangle club's production, "Tunis Anyone?" at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 28 at Masonic temple, a Birmingham boy will be backstage and many Birmingham residents will be in the audience.

James Cloud, son of the late Arthur F. Clouds of Birmingham, is property manager for the all-undergraduate show which moves its scenery and props in a special train on the Princeton Triangle club tour of 16 cities during the Christmas holiday season.

The show this year, with its elaborate setting in Africa behind the "Papyrus Curtain," requires two entire freight cars. Jack is responsible for getting it to the various cities and theatres in one piece.

A Berkeley boy, Eugene L. Sparrow, is in the 16-piece orchestra whose musical numbers include one recently previewed by Ed Sullivan on Toast of the Town.

THEATRE PARTIES in Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham before the Triangle club performance are being given by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Zeder, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Gillette, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams and Mr. and Mrs. E. McCord Mulock, Jr.
