MRS. F. GORDON DAVIS (seated) and Mrs. G. T. Christiansen look over the applications of 15 Birmingham high school students for the Board of Regent scholarships and Honor awards at the University of Michigan. Mrs. Norris A. Host assisted the two interviewers who are members of the Birmingham Alumnae association of the University of Michigan. The awarding is made by the University, based on scholarship and records in high school, aptitude tests and alumnae recommendations. "Need" is also considered in awarding the scholarships. The number of awards given throughout the state will be based on the amount of money available at the University and the number of worthy students.

Ridgedale Players Cast Birmingham Residents in Play

Ridgedale Players will open their second production of the 1954-55 dramatic season on Friday, Jan. 22, at the Ridgedale Playhouse, 8501 West Ten Mile road, Oak Park. The play is "Mr. Barry's Etchings" by Walter Bullock and Daniel Archer.

The authors, in naming their opus, seem to have been possessed of the same urge to manufacture customer appeal that traditionally leads performers to give seductive names to their products. Actually, "Mr. Barry's Etchings" is not a saga of "Wolf versus blonde," as one might think from the title. It's a light-hearted comedy with a fast pace and lots of laughs. The etchings referred to engraving plates, used for printing, of all things, $50 bills!

THE CAST includes Mrs. J. B. (Pat) Jackson, Jr., of 2497 Dorchester road, who has one of the leading roles; Mark and Fran Johnson who live at 270 Westchester Way; and David Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Dixon of 1010 Glenhurst, David and Art Geisler, Jr., will alternate in a teen age role. The director is Ray Potter assisted by Fran Johnson. Howard and Lillian Richards are general chairmen of the show.

Additional performances will be given Saturday, Jan. 23 and on Jan. 28, 29 and 30. Tickets may be obtained from Arthur G. Elliott, Jr., 17 Kenberton road, Pleasant Ridge.

Continuing Child Series at Library

At the second in the Baldwin public library's Wednesday morning film showing on "Ages and Stages of Childhood," Mrs. Earl Hamsley presided during the discussion period, with Mrs. Katherine Rider of the Family Service of Oakland county, acting as resource person to answer questions from the group.

David Fatsenbaum, senior psychologist of the Oakland county juvenile court, will attend the next film showing in the library series, Wednesday morning, Jan. 27, answering questions of guests. Mrs. Jack May will preside.

Films to be shown will be "Age of Turmoil," and "Terrible Twos and Trusting Threes."

THE FIRST film, depicting early adolescence, reflects the emotional turmoil characteristic of this age. Many of the scenes are set in the home, showing various behavior problems which parents must cope with, as well as parental reactions.

The second film, in the play yard of a nursery school, pictures the insatiable curiosity, boundless energy and widening horizons of two and three-year-olds.

The series, which the library is

'Maxwell House' Scene of Party Honoring Major

WING LAKE-FOX-CROFT — A candlelight party honoring Major Margaret A. Maxwell was given by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce K. Harding at "Maxwell House," 6294 Woodlawn road, Wing Lake, on Saturday.

Major Maxwell has just returned from three years service in Japan and will make her home with the Maxwells and the Hardings while stationed in Detroit. She is the sister-in-law to Mrs. Harding's daughter, Genevieve Maxwell, who is at the University of Berut in Lebanon.

White candles, throughout the home, flanked by arrangements of chrysanthemums and pine burning in the fireplace provided just the right atmosphere for such an occasion. A buffet supper climaxed the entertainment.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lakolia, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kasameyer, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Richards and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Acres, all of Wing Lake; Mr. and Mrs. John Stanton and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Shugart of Fennville; Mr. and Mrs. John Nichols of Silverwood Forest and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lumpkin of Rosedale Park.
