President of Duluth-Superior Dies in Detroit

RENWICK MCLAREN KNOX, 56, of 351 Lake Park, died Wednesday in Henry Ford hospital, Detroit, following an illness of several months.

Mr. Knox was president of the Duluth-Superior dredging company. With his late father, Renwick D. Knox, who was formerly president of the company, Mr. Knox was associated with river and harbor improvements on the Great Lakes.

Last of his operations on the Great Lakes was the digging of the trenches for the two oil pipe lines across the Straits of Mackinac last summer.

Both Mr. Knox as president of the Florida and Southern dredging company and his father, as president of the Northern Bridge and Dock company, which built Davis Island in Tampa Bay, ran large scale dredging operations in Florida in the early 20's. Their operations also extended to the Mississippi and Illinois rivers.

Mr. Knox is survived by his wife, Vera; a daughter, Mrs. William Bowen Westfield, N. Y.; two sons, James McLaren of Birmingham and Renwick E. of Pass-A-Delle, Fla.; two grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. R. D. Knox, Beverly Hills, Cal.; and a sister, Mrs. Duncanson of Los Angeles, Cal.

Funeral services will be held at the Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton company at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Burial will follow in White Chapel cemetery.

Quarion property owners appeared to have little objection to location of a station at Chesterfield and W. Maple.

"One unidentified member of the audience remarked, 'I think you have given us a pretty good picture.'"

At the suggestion of Commissioner Dean Beier, the city invited subdivision residents to sit in and advise on the final plans for the waste station.
