

Willetts St. 'Trade' Appears Improbable

Property owners on both sides of Willetts, between Bates and Woodward, do not appear favorably inclined to discuss a trade of land so the street can be straightened and better aligned with Oakland.

In reporting this to the city commission this week, Birmingham City Manager D. C. Egbert said, "The holders of a good share of the property have indicated they are not very acceptable to the idea."

Egbert was referring to the continue negotiations, although it appeared condemnation begins to loom up as the most likely possibility of getting the new right-of-way. At the instance of City Commissioner V. B. Watkins, city officials have been studying the possibility of making Oakland and Willetts meet better at Woodward.

"There never will be a better or less expensive time than now to correct this snarled intersection," Watkins has repeated constantly.

Only last week City Engineer L. R. Gare came up with the engineering study which indicated it would cost about $35,000 to make Willetts four lanes wide. It would be located immediately north of the present right-of-way, in which the city would like to give in trade for the new one.

How To Profit Through Tax Exemption

With today's high tax levels, investors in medium and high tax brackets are turning to tax-free Municipal Bonds for income that they can keep.

If you have a taxable income of $10,000 or more, you may be well repaid by investing in the advantages of tax-exempt State and Municipal Bonds. For instance, if you file a single return on a taxable income of $14,000, you would have to receive a dividend return of 7.4% on a taxable income in order to equal the yield from a 3.5% tax-free Bond. It's something to think about!

Our New Booklet, "How To Profit Through Tax Exemption" explains in plain language your need for tax exemption, tells how much there is to be gained and can be worth to you. There's no obligation. Send for copy today, or phone
