Hart-Kaufman Comedy to End Run Next Sunday
 William W. Merrill, producer-director of "You Can't Take It with You", has announced Aug. 1 as the final Will-O-Way performance of the well-known Mass Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy. The hilarious plot is woven around the complicated life of Grandpa Vanderhof, played by Burton Wright, and the household of unemployed relatives whom he supports. This group is comprised of his daughter, Penelope Sycamore, a self-styled playwright simply because a typewriter was delivered to her house by mistake. HER HUSBAND, Paul, devoted himself to playing with erector sets and experimenting with firecrackers. Added to the "work" he does is Mr. De Pinna, the ice man who came to make a delivery and just stayed on. Esie, Penelope's toe-dancing daughter has a husband who adds to the din by playing her music on the xylophone. Others in the household, but not of the family, include the mad Russian who gives Esie ballet lessons and amuses himself by predicting a revolution; a drunken actress Penelope has picked up and a Russian grand-duchess who sells waffles and syrup at a restaurant. Grandpa's own hobbies are snakes, commencement exercises and a refusal to pay income taxes, the latter dating back to 1914.

Interlochen Draws Several Localities To Annual Fair
 With the annual Federation Day scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 5, at Interlochen's National Music camp, several Birmingham women, representing the State Federation of Music Clubs and Birmingham Musicals will be present. Mrs. Herbert Gardner with her group, Mrs. R. C. Stolte, Mrs. Newell Allen and Mrs. Chester McCormick will leave Monday, returning Friday. A second group, Mrs. I. W. Robertson, Mrs. Norman Lyle and Mrs. D. L. Tait, will leave Birmingham for Interlochen on Wednesday and return Saturday. Mrs. Gardner and her guests will leave a part of their time traveling through the area and visiting friends there.

THE ANNUAL Federation Day is planned to provide special entertainment for the many music clubs which contribute toward Interlochen scholarship funds. The Thursday program will open with a luncheon to be followed by afternoon and evening programs provided by young people who are studying at the camp. According to Mrs. Gardner, guests are housed in the several cottages which have been built on the grounds by music groups and the Federation of Women's club. She will stay in the cottage which is being dedicated this year, the gift of a Wisconsin group. The cottages, including the Michigan unit dedicated last season, provide scholarship funds through their rental to visitors, Mrs. Gardner explained. She and Mrs. Robertson will represent the state organization while all in the two parties are members of the Birmingham Musicals.

Harbor Point Visitor
 Mrs. Henry Edwards of 5300 Brookdale will leave this week for a month at Harbor Point. She will return home in September, then leave again for a month's stay in California.
