Predict Outstanding Show

With more than 100 competitive classes scheduled, the 77th annual Detroit Horse show, June 24-27, at the Bismarck Open Hunt club promises to be the best to date according to officials.

Show President Irving H. Duffy said last week that entries were being received from several new corners, as well as those who have shown horses here for many years.

Established his office at the Hunt club and in handling operations from there.

Clarence L. Craven of Brookline, Mass., well known to area horsemen, will again serve as ring master. Eric W. J. Atterbury, Great Neck, L. I., will be steward.

The Detroit Horse show is a member of the American Horse Shows association and rated as Class A, highest rank given.

Winners in this show accumulate points toward the national finals, the annual show held each winter at Madison Square Garden in New York.

The boys opened and closed with Cub Scout songs, accompanied by Mrs. Vernon Fishtahler, den mother, at the piano.

Tony Youcum was presented with Bear Badge.
