

Simple Siren Went Awryin'

"Down in the valley, The valley so low, Our volunteer firemen Can't hear the thing blow." With that siren song on their voices, Birmingham city commissioners determined this week that the city's second siren is to be moved out the Rouge river valley at Maple and Baldwin and set atop a pole on Lincoln immediately west of Woodward.

Pointing out the siren in the valley does not give adequate coverage, City Manager D. C. Egbert says a larger percentage of city firemen live in the Woodward-Lincoln area, anyway.

Lights Out, Please

A defective fluorescent light fixture at the new S. S. Kresge store, 227 West Maple, sent Birmingham firemen to the scene at 9:32 a.m. Sunday morning. Firemen extinguished the lights to prevent fire.

CLARE CUMMINGS

Demonstrates Art As International Magicians Convene

A Birmingham man, Clare Cummings, 1456 Ruffner, is working hard this week to mystify fellow magicians, as the convention of the International Brotherhood of Magicians meets in Louisville, Ky. Cummings will be one of five to take part in a full afternoon program of "close-up" magic, where, using small objects such as coins, the conjurer works close to his audience.

About 1,500 performers from all over the world are expected to attend the affair at the Kentucky hotel.

Cummings, who has made about eight trips to the convention in the past, will also present his full "Milky the Clown" program as televised in this area.

The locality was recently elected an executive officer of the American Federation of Television and Radio Actors (AFTRA) for the Detroit chapter.

Horse Show Begins Today

Outstanding show horses from all parts of the country, including Miss Budweiser, 1952 Olympic jumper, are entered in the 37th annual Detroit Horse Show which opens Thursday at Bloomfield Open Hunt Club. The show will run through Sunday, June 27.

"The 1954 show will be the biggest and best show that we have had at Bloomfield Open Hunt Club," Irving A. Duffy, president of the show, said.

Two new events, which will add to the pleasure of the audience and exhibitors, have been added this year. These are for harness and hackney ponies.

Horses and riders will be judged in 101 classes and eight divisions, which will make the Detroit Horse Show one of the most diversified shows in the country.

More than $10,000 in cash prizes will be awarded, and in some major events prizes up to $1,000 will be offered.

Tickets for the show are being sold exclusively by the Boys' Club of Detroit. The proceeds will go toward club funds and projects. Although the show is held at a private club, the general public is welcomed.

THIS YEAR the show will include the presentation of the 1956 Olympic Equestrian events. The Bloomfield jumping courses have been modified to meet Olympic standards, and show judges will be looking for riders and horses to represent the United States in the Olympics.

Club members also have added 100 new show stalls and have completely revamped the outside courses to make the jumps more competitive and interesting to the riders and spectators.

AMONG THE well-known horses entered include Miss Budweiser, owned by August R. Busch of St. Louis; Copperfield, owned by Hugh Gentry of Oakhill Farms, Wadsworth, Ill.; Strawberry Fox, owned by Mrs. Carlton Higbee, Bloomfield Hills, and My Happiness, winner of the Blackthorn Memorial challenge trophy in 1953, owned by Sam. Burton L. Lohmuller, Centralia, Kan.

Morning performances will start at 9:30 and after a short recess, the show will continue at 12:30 p.m. Evening sessions under lights will start at 6:30.

Want ads cannot be accepted after 5 p.m. each Tuesday.
