MRS. HASTINGS K. WRIGHT

Nancy E. Howell Weds Doctor in Francestown

Wearing a gown of lace and satin made by her mother, Nancy Elizabeth Howell became the bride of Dr. Hastings Kemper Wright Saturday. The Rev. John W. Ellison read the 3 o'clock rites before 200 wedding guests in the Francestown Federated church, Francestown, N.H.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Austin Howell, 140 Lakewood. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Murray Wright of Winchester, Mass. Nancy's gown was fashioned with a scalloped neckline edged with seedpearls, a fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves. The three-quarter length lace skirt ended in scallops over a full length satin underskirt. Her fingertip veil was attached to a Juliet cap. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses.

THE BRIDES sister, Mrs. Charles Samuel Gerrish, Jr., of Kittery, Maine, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of yellow embroidered organza with a bouffant skirt and wide satin cashi. Bridesmaids were Lucia Ann Wright and Susan Catherine Howell, sisters of the bride and groom. They had green embroidered frocks identical to the matron's. All attendants wore garlands of daisies in their hair and carried old-fashioned bouquets of daisies.

Two more members of the Howell family, Mary Christine and Marjorie Jean, were flower girls. They wore heartless lace dresses were worn

Five situations can descend upon one that will, immediately, upset his or her normal living. When tragedy appears to be an unexpected visitor one needs to summon his inner spiritual beliefs to tide him over the situation. This allows God a chance to help.

MRS. RICHARD J. SAUNDERS

Honeymooners Travel To Mackinac Island

In a double-ring ceremony in the First Methodist church on Saturday afternoon, Phyllis Ann Cox became the bride of Richard James Saunders. The Rev. Harry O. Martin read the rites at 3 p.m.

Phyllis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beltram Cox, 807 Wallace. Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Saunders of Addison, Mich.

The bride selected a gown with chantilly lace bodice and sleeves and a nylon tulle bouffant skirt with panel inserts of lace. A hand of lace held the fingertip veil. She carried white stephanotis centered with glanellas.

WEARING a blue nylon tulle ballerina length dress was the matron of honor, Mrs. Barbara Michael of Royal Oak, sister of the bride. She carried pink carnations. Another sister, Diann Cox, was the junior bridesmaid. She wore a rose nylon tulle ballerina length dress. Her flowers were yellow carnations.

Dan Saunders of Addison, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Jack A. Kelly, William Rose and Richard Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders went to the Mackinac Island for their wedding trip. The bride wore a white linen sheath dress trimmed in blue
