Horse Fanciers Found In North Adams Area

By DIBBY SMITH
 Staff Correspondent

NORTH ADAMS—The Detroit Horse Show which is being held June 24-27 at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club brings to mind that there are many horse fanciers in our area.

Despite the fact that the exodus from the city to that acre or two in the country, has turned many fields into roads and homesteads, there are still many residents in this area who have the room to keep and care for their own horses.

There is a stable at Big Beaver and North Adams road. It is fun to drive slowly by and watch the training proceeds. In process, for there is most always some activity there.

Don K. Earnest keeps horses at his place on East Long Lake road. He and Robert Sarver of Beach road are active polo players. Mr. Sarver has plenty of acreage on which to keep his horses. His daughter, Ellen, is becoming quite an accomplished light rider.

The Robert T. Dudley's of Charing Cross road have suffered the loss of a pasture across the road from them but that fact does not deter them from the raising of their Morgan horses. Virginia and her brother Robert are both active in the work of the 4-H group in this area.

Nancy Woodman of Wattles road and John Hoodbook of Beach have their own horses and care for them themselves.

The Allen K. Parrishes are more horse lovers who still have the room to keep their own horses. They are interested in the western style of riding and find many many hours of pleasure from their hobby.

The Perry Williams keep horses at Strawberry Hill and the Edward E. Wilsons, who have a large dairy farm on Beach road, have horses as well.

Mrs. A. I. O'Connor of Square Lake can frequently be seen working her trotting horses. She is out bright and early in the morning. Other Square Lake road residents who have their own horses and keep them themselves are the Peter Browns and Mr. and Mrs.

William W. Busch.

Joyce Harlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Harlan of North Adams road and Nancyrave Smith, daughter of the James M. Smiths of Beach road have enrolled again this year in the Cranbrook summer school of the Theatre which is under the direction of Carl G. Wonnberger.

Anne Hamner, daughter of the Duncan H. Hamners of Longmeadows, road left Wednesday for California to study at the University of Wattle's road and a member of this year's graduating class at Troy high school left Monday to attend a three day counseling clinic at Michigan State College.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Smith of Beach road returned Friday from a trip through the upper peninsula.

Mr. and Mrs. David E. Kramer entertained Sunday at their home on North Adams.

Miss Barbara Ann Schnake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Schnake of Diablo Heights, Canal Zone, has been visiting her fiancé, Richard Jeffers, and his parents, the George T. Jeffers of Hy-lane drive. The young couple plan to be married August 9 in Panama.
