Community Minded Citizens Donate Services for Park and Beach Area

Wing Lakers have been busy donating their services for the betterment of their community. Among them are Jack Rohner and Tom Carter, who transplanted the six crab-apple trees in the park area to another location just before Arden Mitchell, contractor for the beach and park project, moved in his steam shovel and dredging equipment.

Other busy workers are the head of the beach and park finance committee, William Fraser, and his co-workers who deserve a word of praise for their fund raising that has started the beach and park plans well on their way to completion.

And, tiring of waiting for the road commission to widen Sandy lane, the John Richters and the Walter Steckers obtained a permit from Oscar Loomis, county road commissioner, to widen the road by eight feet. Hiring the services of a bulldozer, they accomplished the job in two days' time. Spreading of gravel and grading will be done by the road commission this week.
