Maples, Ravine Draw Comment From Newcomer

To the Editor:
As a new resident of this area, I love Birmingham's maples. Love her ravine on Main.
The red barn with the house to match. Reminds me of a woman's purse and hat. The falls right next door.

Tell me—no one ever drives through this dip without taking a drink of all this for their soul, do they?
Yes; definitely you take gulps for your interior. If you don't, you'll starve spiritually. It's free—this kind of drink.
ANOTHER KIND of drink we had came last weekend.
She acted up. Guess she decided that her guests, we mortals, were taking her burnt orange paintings of leaves and her grey and blue fallish sky and her tangy air too much for granted.

"Will stir up a Thunder and Lightning Job and add gallons and gallons of wet stuff and pour it around. What do I care if somebody gets hurt and damage is done?"
And she did just that.
Nature. She acts remarkably human at times. Shame on her.
