Walbri Estate Awaits New Home Construction

When newsmen toured the beautifully-landscaped summer residence of the late Walter O. Briggs last week in Bloomfield Hills, they were amazed at the perfect condition of both grounds and buildings. To graphically describe the grandeur of the 148-acre estate would take a whole page of pictures for presented here are but two of the many outstanding buildings in "Walbri". The estate is being subdivided into a community-type development to be known as Woodcrest Lakes and the property is located at West Long Lake and Sautter road. The future of the home, pictured at top, will not be decided until all the property is sold and members of the organization have had an opportunity to choose whether or not the home will be retained as a community house. The pool building, pictured at bottom, however, will become part of the facilities association members will enjoy. Snyder, Kinney and Bennett, Inc., Birmingham realtors, are handling the sale of the property. (Eccentric Photos)

Sewage Treatment Service Charges Set At $69,000

BLOOMFIELD—Agreement on actual cost figures to be assessed against the township for sewage treatment services until December 31, 1956, was reached by Birmingham city commissioners Monday night.

Total charges to the township for treatment of sewage emanating from township property within the Bloomfield drains are seen to be $69,007.74 for the 2½ years that the present contract will be in effect.

A cost breakdown of this figure includes $12,505.84 for the township's share of interest on the city's sewage treatment plant; $15,561.90 for amortization of the plant and $41,000 for amortization of the recently-installed aeration equipment.

The township's participation in the city plant has been set at 10½ percent of the total operation. This figure is expected to grow as the township's undeveloped area is built up.

City Manager Donald Egbert reported that Township Supervisor David E. Anderson had agreed to all terms of the cost figures.

Trustees Study Roads And Water Supply Problems

BLOOMFIELD VILLAGE—Additional water supply and a road resurfacing program are among items to be discussed by the Bloomfield Village Protective Association during business meetings this winter.

According to a recent bulletin prepared by the village board, trustees have been meeting with developer Judson Bradley and members of the Bloomfield Village water corporation to study a solution to the water shortage.

Board members Joseph P. Baldez, Louis A. Bauer and John Osler have been named to a committee to continue investigations of water supply.

The board also reported that the Oakland County road commission recently completed repair work on village streets but, according to Road Commissioner William H. Cartwright, plans will materialize this winter on a resurfacing program for the area's roads.

There are now 52 homes in the village, according to the bulletin.

Riders Hold Show To Aid Polio Fund

By ALICE E. MORGAN

A near cloud burst cut short the Junior Western Horse show Saturday afternoon at the Ivory Polo field on S. Mile, but not until young riders had demonstrated their ability, showmanship and sportsmanship to the many who attended.

The affair was instigated by the Swingin' H Riding club, a group of youngsters from this area, who adopted the motto, "We ride for those who cannot walk," as they earmarked proceeds to go to the Emergency March of Dimes.

The Swingin' H has as their friend and staunch supporter Chuck Haag, well-known western showman, who has spent hours working with them and bringing their work to near professional standards.

The club "booked" out at the Erlanson home on 11 Mile, or the Reeve farm, Wing Lake road, under the supervision of Haag.

Highlight of the show was the club's square dance, presented by Kooki Roberts and Mike Smith, Jack Colley and Sam Reeve; Nancy Vogelstein and Don Dawson; and the "Barnyard" by Kooki Erlanson. Handling spirited mounts through the intricate figures of the dance requires special training and considerable skill.

Other young riders from nearby communities were entered in competitive events which, because of the severe storm, were not completed.

Some trophies, including the championship, were not awarded, along with numerous ribbons. It is not yet known what disposition will be made of the remaining awards.

SPECIAL EVENTS started off with the parade of all riders plus members of the Oakland County Sheriff's posse who presented the color guard. Haag gave a trick roping demonstration, while exhibition work was done by Barbara Gibson and Ann Campbell, Detroit postess, and Shirley Wenzel riding four horses and jumping low hurdles while blindfolded.
